Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

'The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291," Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure, the jet commander descended through the altitude of the TWA flight over South Bend, Ind.

The second incident involved a twin engine Cessna en route to Pal-Waukee Airport which crossed in front of North Central flight 112 about 16 miles southeast of Janesville, Wis. The new "Conflict Alert" system being installed at the Chicago Air Route Traffic Control Center in Aurora is designed to prevent potentially dangerous controller errors.

FAA sppokesmen said the new system was planned for installation long before the recent rash of near misses. "This program has been in the test phase since February in Kansas City, so the program was coming," said John Martin, automation specialist for

CURRENTLY ONLY Kansas City and Fort Worth have the Conflict Alert equipment operating, although it will soon be in operation nationwide. "All centers are shooting to have it on the air this month," Martin said.

The special warning equipment is based on a computer which defines a hockey puck-shaped disc around each tracked aircraft. The computer then projects where the disc will be in two minutes. If any two discs overlap, within the two-minute projection, a conflict alert is declared.

The controller is made aware of the alert by rapid flashing on his video screen. The computer will automatically provide needed plane identification, altitude and other informa-

"The controller, when he gets this alert, has two minutes to separate these aircraft," Martin said, noting the controller can order a climb, a descent or a turn by one or both aircraft.

Village funding asked for youth counselor plan

Full village funding of the couning up job descriptions for the counselor-in-the-park program will be recommended by the Arlington Heights Youth Council despite a village report calling for the park district to assume some of the program's funding.

The youth council Monday agreed to include funding of the counselor-inthe-park program in its 1976-77 budget request to the village board. The youth council has until Jan. 17 to submit its budget request.

The village board appropriated $19,960 for the program this fiscal year but only approximately $16,000 was spent. No budget request has been prepared for 1976-77.

The program has placed counselors in the six major parks in the Arlington Heights Park District for the past three summers to prevent vandalism and loitering.

"I PERSONALLY felt there was some justification for the parks to pay a portion (of the program)," said Alfred J. Barbaro, chairman of the youth council

Park district officials have said funding of the program is a village responsibility because it is a logical extension of the village's duty to enforce its ordinances.

"There is no money in the park district currently that would facilitate us (the park district) policing the parks," said Jacqueline Gruenewalk, the park district representative on the youth council.

Park district officials have agreed to handle most of the administrative functions of the program. These include the supervising of hiring and performance of the counselors, draw-

THE YOUTH COUNCIL will serve as a liaison between the village and park district, draw up a directory of youth activities and resources and help in the formation of teen programs.

James Holzwart, assistant to the village manager questioned the village need to pay $6.50 an hour for counselors with master's degrees if their main function was control. Youth Council members argued that the counselors had the dual function of counseling and control.

Shoppers mall for Campbell unveiled tonight

A sketch of a pedestrian shoppers mall that may be built for demonstration purposes on Cambell Street, between Vail and Dunton streets, will be unveiled tonight.

The sketch will be shown to the village's subcommittee on central business district improvements by Village Planner Joseph Kesler. The committee meets at the village hall at 8

The mall will be for demonstration purposes, said William Griffith, chairman of the committee, because "it's important to see how it goes; how people like it and how the merchants

Construction of the demonstration mall on Campbell Street will first require its acceptance by merchants in that area, Kesler said.

Kesler said, "If they don't want it we'll try to get it accepted by merchants in another block. A temporary mall is also a possibility. Then, if it doesn't work out, we can always remove it."

Kesler last month submitted 10 possible "concepts" designed to revive downtown Arlington Heights. The committee is expected to continue discussing them at tonight's meeting.

"At least now we have something to get started on," Griffith said. "We're getting to the point where the pieces will start coming together."

Village to study area games laws

Controls on coin-operated amusement devices in neighboring communities will be reviewed before similar regulations are considered for Arlington Heights.

The village board's legal committee Monday night directed Martin Munson, village building commissioner, to obtain ordinances regarding coin-operated devices from other villages and to check on what problems have occurred at their arcades.

"It seems sensible to find out what the problems are and what has been done to resolve them," said David Griffin, committee chairman.

'WE CERTAINLY don't have the intent of banning every coin-operated amusement device in the village, but an arcade would seem to be inconsistent with our downtown area," Griffin said. "It could be an aggravation."

There are approximately 100 coinoperated amusement devices in Arlington Heights now, Munson reported. That total includes jukeboxes and kiddie rides, he said.

"A lot of them are put in without our knowledge," Munson said. "We pick them up with spot checks." A license must be issued for each device,

"We're not concerned about increasing village revenue," he said.

"But they can be a problem with kids blowing their lunch money on them. They even have them in grocery stores now.'

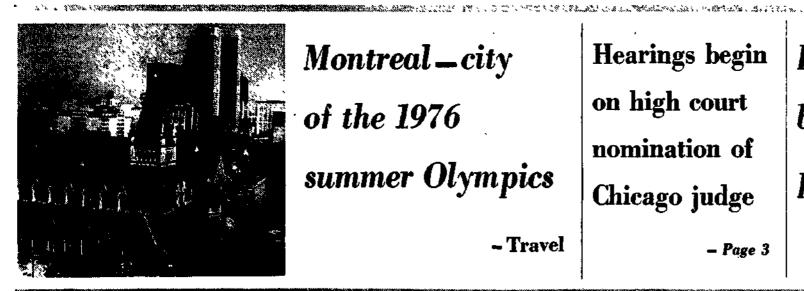

MOST BUSINESSES with the machines have about five or six, but Arlington Park has 20 and Pit 'N Pub has 17, Munson said.

"What constitutes an arcade?" he said. "Right now we have no regulations if they are in an enclosed

In Des Plaines, more than three coin-operated machines constitutes an arcade, and in Mount Prospect, the location of the devices is restricted, Munson said he receives about one inquiry a week regarding Arlington Heights' regulations on arcades.

The committee will also be watching the results of tonight's Rolling Meadows city council meeting. A proposal there to open a coin-operated games center has been approved twice by the city council but has been vetoed both times by Mayor Roland J. Meyer. The council will attempt again tonight to override Mayer's latest veto of an ordinance permitting a center for amusement devices provided no eating or drinking is allowed in the games facility.

Hoffman parks ask dissolution study

The Hoffman Estates Park District has proposed a study to determine if the park district should be dissolved and made part of the village. The proposed study, which would be conducted by the park district and the village, stems from a vote last week by park commissioners to abandon plans for a park improvements referendum. Comr. Thomas Barber said the district board voted to propose the study in order to learn if recreation services might be provided more economically through village administration rather then through an independent taxing body like the park district.

He's a hero in pool rescue

A member of a Schaumburg townhouse complex maintenance crew, on the job only two weeks, became an instant hero Monday when he saved a youngster from drowning in the development's swimming pool Paul Dostal, 18. of Hoffman Estates rescued the unidentified youth, who fell through thin ice covering the pool. Dostal sald he was alerted of the mishap by another youngster and rushed to the pool area. He said a companion was holding the youngster, in an effort to save his friend, but that the companion's grasp was slipping. Dostal pulled the boy, who appeared to be about 7 years old, from the pool. "He started to cry and said thank you. He was asking if I could get his shoe," Dostal said. "It was at the bottom of the pool."

Drop in Meadows council?

The Rolling Meadows City Council could dwindle from its present 10 aldermen to only four elected-at-large representatives if the city adopts a stronger city-manager form of government. City finance committee members learned Monday that if a referendum seeking a city manager form of government is approved by voters without additional questions dealing with the make-up of the council, the council membership, under state law, will automatically be set at only four members.

Railways face legal action

The Chicago and North Western Ry, and two other railroads have been threatened with legal action by the Illinois Commerce Commission if they fail by Wednesday to present data on the types of hazardous materials the railroads ship through the state. "It would be foolish to let these three get off scot free," Michael Pfaff, ICC technical advisor said Monday. "I want to go to the wall with all three of these." Monday three other railroads turned over the information requested by the ICC. Last week Pfaff said he might sue six railroads if they failed to comply with the ICC request. Pfaff said the ICC has been seeking data necessary for drafting a state regulation on the transport of hazardous chemicals, a move being fought by the railroads.

THE SYSTEM also will not work for planes in a holding pattern, for planes not in communication with the traffic control center and for those above a certain altitude.

The warning program is not needed for planes in a holding pattern because "the system works fine in the holding pattern," Callahan said.

U.N. attempt to condemn Israel vetoed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) - The United States vetoed a Security Council resolution Monday night that would have condemned Israeli raids on Lebanon last week without mentioning violence committed against Israel.

The vote was 13-1 in favor of the resolution with Costa Rica abstaining. U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan cast the 12th U.S. veto in U.N. history to block adoption of the resolution sponsored by the "nonaligned" members of the Council.

The resolution, sponsored by Cameroon, Guyana, Iraq, Mauritania and Tanzania, "strongly condemns" Israel for the raids in which Arab officials said more than 100 persons died. It calls on Israel to "desist forthwith" from all military action against Lebanon and carries a "solemn warning" that the Council must consider harsher measures if such attacks are re-

In the Middle East, meantime, Israeli troops fired into the air to break up a protest by some 1,000 Arab youths against Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank of Jordan, in one of the worst outbreaks of unrest in the region in six years.

The protest demonstration erupted in Nablus, the West Bank's biggest town. Arab youths barricaded themselves in the old section and blocked narrow alleyways with burning oil drums. They threw rocks at Israeli troops from roof tops and rolled burning tires at them.

About 350 Israeli troops backed by 20 armored cars fired their guns in the air for an hour, then rushed the blockaded alleys, clubbing some of the youths before throwing them into Jeeps.

Women and children ran for safety. All shops were closed and reporters were evicted from the area. A black pall of smoke hung over the town when order was restored after three hours.

There was no report of casualties or how many Arabs were arrested. It was one of the worst demonstrations in the West Bank since the 1969 protests against Israeli occupation.

Reinecke Watergate conviction overturned

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Monday unanimously overturned the Watergate-related perjury conviction of former Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California. By a 3-0 vote on a Senate rules technicality, the panel dismissed the conviction outright - not sending it back to district court where Reinecke was tried. Reinecke had been sentenced to 18 months for lying to the Senate Judiciary Committee about the date when he first told Attorney General John N. Assistant U.S. Attorney David Bancroft filed the motion after the judge earlier in the day admonished both defense and prosecution lawyers about publicity in the case. Bancroft said he expected the motion to be considered at a pretrial hearing Thursday.

Without federal spending limit...

Ford will veto tax cut measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford will veto any tax cut bill that does not also impose a limit on federal spending and believes his veto would be sustained, the White House

Press Secretary Ron Nessen also said Ford might call Congress into a special session or prevent it from adjourning later this month if necessary to try to force enactment of a spending ceiling along with a permanent extension of the personal tax cut that is scheduled to expire Jan. 1.

Ford outlined his plans at a midafternoon meeting with top economic advisers and Nessen said they assured the President that if the tax cut were to expire for "a short period of time, it will not have any material effect on the economy.'

Nessen said Ford "truly believes" in his proposal for a $28 billion tax cut with an equal reduction in federal spending — to set a $395 billion ceiling on spending during the fiscal year starting next Oct. 1 — and that recent polls indicate a majority of Americans support Ford's position.

Accordingly, he said Ford told Treasury Secretary William E. Simon at Monday's meeting to emphasize in Senate testimony Tuesday that "the President will veto any extension of a tax reduction unless it has a ceiling on spending."

The House late last week approved a broad tax revision package that would extend last spring's tax reductions - including a $12 billion personal income tax cut — but the legislation would not set a limit on spending.

Nessen noted there has been talk in the Senate of a temporary tax cut extension, for perhaps three or four months, to allow time to resolve the spending issue without letting the tax reductions expire. But he said Ford would veto any temporary measures too, whatever their time frame. Asked if Ford thought his threatened veto could be upheld in Congress, Nessen recalled that the House refused by a vote of only 213 to 203 to allow a vote on Ford's spending ceiling and that the President was confident of enough support to win if he cast a veto to block the bill's enactment. The final bill passed the House

"It can be easily sustained," Nessen

Nessen stopped short of saying Ford definitely would move to call Congress back from a Christmas recess or try to keep it in session to get his way. But he said the President had told Max Friedersdorf, his chief congressional liaison aide, to contact the congressional parliamentarian.

Ford said he wanted Freidersdorf "to get him the particulars if it were necessary to call them (members of Congress) back or keep them in session," Nessen told reporters.

Democratic leaders had hoped that Ford would accept an extension of three to six months of current lower tax withholding rates, preventing the tax bill of both individuals and businesses from rising on Jan. 1.

Stevens declines death penalty stand -says ERA of 'symbolic importance'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Supreme Court nominee John Paul Stevens declined Monday to disclose his position on capital punishment and said while he had no prejudices about women's rights he considered the Equal Rights Amendment to have only "symbolic importance."

Stevens told the Senate Judiciary Committee the death penalty might be a deterrent to some crime, but "It would not be appropriate for me to discuss this issue in detail" since he could be called to decide the question of capital punishment as a member of the court.

Testifying before the first day of hearings by the committee on his nomination to the high court, Stevens told Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., "I assume that if one contemplated that if he did something, his life would be in jeopardy, it could be of some deterrence.

Stevens also said he had reviewed some of his previous decisions involving women's rights and believed they showed no prejudice. He suggested the controversial Equal Rights Amendment may have only "symbolic importance" for women.

Pressed by Kennedy to discuss the issue of capital punishment. Stevens said, "I'm afraid if you lead me on this way it will make it more difficult to be completely impartial in the future" if confirmed as a justice of the court. Stevens also declined a suggestion by Kennedy that he make public his own summary of his finances which he made available to the committee.

"If you think it should be made public, then I leave it up to you," he said. "I have nothing to withhold but that's a question for the committee to de-

Stevens, 55, also said that he had fully recovered from open heart surgery in 1974 and was "in perfect health."

He was introduced to the committee by Atty, Gen, Edward Levi who called his opinions "gerns of perfection," and by Illinois Sens. Charles Percy, and Adali Stevenson, who urged his prompt confirmation.

Twin-engine plane with 4 aboard crashes in lake

by United Press International

A twin-engine plane carrying a Pennsylvania man and his three passengers apparently crashed into Lake Michigan in dense snow and fog southeast of Meigs Field Monday shortly after departing from the lakefront airport, authorities said.

Three Coast Guard boats searched into the night for the downed plane in an area between two and three miles off shore.

A Coast Guard belicopter, which searched even further off shore, and fire department boats were called in shortly after dark.

Fire Marshal Albert Prendergast said that if those in the plane had survived the crash, they probably would not survive the exposure of being in the water more than about five min-

ems slate first to file in county

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County Democrats were the first in line Monday as the filing of nominating petitions began for the March 16 primary.

The petitions for State's Atty. candidate Edward Egan, Recorder of Deeds Sidney Olsen and Circuit Court Clerk Morgan Finley were filed by two officials of the Democratic Centrai Committee shortly after the doors opened at the county clerk's office.

The Democratic petition-bearers, joined at the last minute by the three candidates, carried large shopping bags filled with petitions for the three top county candidates, Metropolitan Sanitary District commissioners and many of the Chicago ward committeemen who are up for election this year

THE THREE Republican candidates for the county posts did not file their petitions Monday. A GOP spokesman said the petitions will not be filed until later this week. Filing ends Dec. 15.

Candidates' families snapped pictures of each other while waiting for the filing to begin. The city committeeman jobs will be filled in the March primary. Suburban township

The early-birds were not guaranteed the coveted first position on the primary ballot, however, because of court decisions in recent years which require all candidates who are in line when filing opens to be treated equal-

County Clerk Stanley Kusper, who observed the filing operations, said lotteries will determine the first position on the ballot sometime after filing closes "Everybody will be treated equally," said Kusper, a committeemen were elected two Democrat "That's the way we have to do it."

> CANDIDATES for the Illinois General Assembly had to journey to Springfield or send representatives to file their nominating petitions

> Republican gubernatorial candidate James R Thompson was among the candidates who endured the 20-degree weather to file petitions

A spokesman for the Illinois Board of Elections in Springfield said a listing of all the candidates who filed for election Monday would not be available until today at the earliest.

As in the case of candidates who filed for county office, the first persons in line do not automatically get the top spot on the ballot. State officials will be required to hold a drawing to determine ballot position in all legislative districts.

Some candidates decided not to wait in line, but opted to deposit their nominating petitions in the elections board's mailbox in Springfield over the weekend

The ballot for the primary election will not be completed until after Dec. 20, which is the last day a candidate can withdraw from the election.

United lays off 13,000; talks go on

United Airlines, shut down since early Saturday when 16,700 ground personnel walked off the job, Monday said it will lay off 13,000 other employ-

Effective midnight Monday, about 7,000 flight attendants, 5,200 flight officers and 800 other employes were put on "without pay" status.

As the strike by members of the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers moved into its third day, airline officials announced all flights will be canceled through at least midnight Thursday.

THE COUNTRY'S TOP labor trouble-shooter, W. J. Usery, supervised a five-hour bargaining session Monday between representatives of United and the union at the National Mediation Board in Washington.

There was no indication from either side how the talks are going, but a snokesman for the airline said it is a hopeful sign that the negotiations are continuing

The spokesman said the employes who have been placed on without-pay status will be recalled as soon as an agreement is reached on the contract. The contract expired Oct. 31, but nerotiations reportedly have been hung up in disputes over wages and fringe

"Employes who have been put on without-pay status are people who belong to other unions," the spokesman said "This is a normal procedure in the event of a strike and was done in part because they respect the picket lines of other unions and in part because their own contracts do not allow them to do other than their own jobs during a strike.

"IT IS NOT the same as being laid off or furloughed," the spokesman said. "The insurance benefits will continue and they will continue to accrue sentority 1

Another 19,000 non-union United employes and management personnel have not been affected by the strike. Some of these employes, however, are working in other capacities to help shift passengers scheduled on United flights to other airlines.

United normally handles about 17,000 passengers daily on flights in and out of O'Hare Airport. Most travelers have been able to make alternate flight arrangements on other carriers, but airline officials throughout the industry fear a prolonged strike could foul up plans for thousands of holiday travelers They say there might not be enough seats to go

Although United is accepting bookings for the upcoming Christmas travel rush that is expected to begin in about two weeks, the airline Monday began a "button down" process of moving auplanes to major maintemany of the group's members, is a commercial airline pilot.

They build and fly them

Small-scale planes intrigue pilots

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horrace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

"You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously - like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional warplanes.

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Ro-

"More people are getting involved in it," said Horrace Cain, Buffalo Grove, who also is a pilot for United.

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's membership growth rate has been about the same." Cain said

MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air." he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile model kits.

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

Summer Olympic tickets available

It's not too late to plan a trip next summer to beautiful Montreal, Quebec, for the 1978 Summer Olympic Games. Tickets for many events will be on sale in this country through Dec. 31 and a wide range of accommodations is still available.

Amateur athletes from all over the world will participate in the 21st Olympiad July 17-Aug. 1. Most events will be held in the City of Montreal or nearby suburbs, although a few are scheduled in Toronto.

Over 400,000 tickets for the Olympics were reallocated to the United States Nov. 1, following the end of the first sales period last summer. The tickets are being gomery Ward Auto Club. After the Dec. 31 deadline of sold through Montgomery Ward stores and the Montthis second sales period, no tickets will be available to American citizens.

There are no restrictions on the number of tickets per order for events including archery, canoeing, equestrian sports, football (soccer), field hockey, judo, Modern Pentathlon, rowing, shooting, yachting and many events in the categories of track and field, basketball, boxing and handball.

EVENTS THAT ARE already sold out include opening and closing ceremonies, cycling, fencing, gymnastics, swimming, volleyball, weightlifting, and wrestling. Schedules for all Olympic events and ticket order forms may be obtained at the catalog order desks of Montgomery Ward stores or by writing War's Auto Club - Olympics, P.O. Box 4000, Taylor, Mich., 48180. Ward's is employing extraordinary security measures to ensure that tickets get to the persons who order them and do not fall into the hands of scalpers or counterfelters. Ticket confirmation slips are sent to purchasers in plain envelopes with a simple return address that does not mention the Olympics. Tickets will be mailed in June, 1976 by registered mail. It would be wise for anyone Intending to go to the Olympics to make room reservations for the trip as soon as possible.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Canadian Government Office of Tourism told The Herald that about 45 per cent of all accommodations within a 50-mile radius of Montreal already are booked.

While getting reservations at a major downtown hotel in Montreal could be a problem, he said accommodations still can be arranged at a number of smaller hotels, motels and different types of facilities.

The Quebec Lodging Bureau, created by the Quebec government to assist visitors to the 1976 Summer Olympics, has compiled a list of all possible accommodations within 100 miles of the Olympic City.

The agency has been charged with the task of in-

MONTREAL IS A commercial center already noted for the quality and variety of its tourist facilities, according to a book published by the Lodging Bureau that lists eight various kinds of accommodations that are under its jurisdiction including hotels, motels, tourist homes, private residences, apartment hotels, institutions, youth hostels and camping and trailer parks.

A number of excellent, modern hotels are just a short drive away from the Olympic site via Quebec's superhighways. Several of the large resorts offer a wide range of activities of their own such as golf, tennis, swimming and horseback riding. There are many family-owned smaller hotels in the towns and villages where supper may be served by the cook.

There are six classes identifying the standard of accommodations offered by the hotels, with rates ranging from about $8 to $64 per night, double occupancy.

Motels around Montreal are generally located on the outskirts of the city adjacent to major thoroughfares. Many have a restaurant, an indoor or outdoor swimming pool, conference rooms and even a children's playground. Most motels are equipped with private bath

QUEBEC'S TOURIST homes are described by the Lodging Bureau as being very much like many small European hostelries. They offer fewer services than the larger hotels, but many have a particular kind of Old World charm. Some tourist homes were once spacious private residences, others are completely modern. Generally located in downtown Montreal, tourist homes are often just a few steps from the best restaurants, stores and theatres.

Tourist homes are divided into two subcategories to distinguish between those who offer breakfast and those who do not. Costs are between $8 and $37 per night.

More than 30,000 rooms and 1,200 furnished houses and apartments are available in and around Quebec by natives who will open their homes to Olympic visitors.

Highly recommending the private homes to travelers, the Lodging Bureau says "Renting a room in a private home is a sure ticket to a warm welcome in Quebec.

For between $35 and $85, a family may rent a furnished apartment at one of the city's many apartment hotels. Sutdies to spacious suites with living room and several bedrooms are available. All are equipped with a kitchen, bath and television and also offer parcel and message services.

During the Olympics, several colleges in and around Montreal will be converted into temporary hotels. Visitors will be lodged in dormitories, multi-occupant bedrooms, single rooms and "roomettes" (beds separated by at least three partitions.)

Sports associations, journalists and groups of 10 persons or more will be given priority by the Lodging Rureau for reservations in institutions. Rates range between $10.50 to $17 per night, double occupancy

MORE THAN 12,000 youth hostels are available for young Olympic visitors. A sleeping bag is a must, but facilities including toilets, showers plus drinking water are provided. Some have cafeterias which serve meals at moderate prices. A variety of socio-cultural events will be especially planned for guests. Rates per person vary between $1 and $4 per night.

Campers will find camp sites near Montreal and elsewhere in Quebec. The least costly campgrounds offer no services. Others may have a restaurant, grocery store, swimming pool or various other sports facilities. Campgrounds accommodating trailers are equipped with electricity, running water and a sewage system. Sites may be rented for between $3 and $8 per night.

Reservation forms and other information about accommodations for the Olympics are available from the Lodging Bureau, 201 East Cremazie St., Montreal, PQ,

Founded in 1642 as Ville Marie, a Christian mission. Montreal combines the old with the new in fascinating contrast.

Two-thirds of Montreal's 2.5 million residents still are French-speaking and the old quarter of the city with its beautiful cathedrals reflects the area's history

Narrow cobblestone streets wind through the Old Quarter, where small boutiques filled with handcrafted objects and sidewalk cafes lend a Parisian flavor.

In addition to Montreal's normally long list of cultural activities, a number of special events and programs are planned in connection with the Summer Olympics.

The summer program, set up by the Organizing Committee of the 1976 Olympic Games, will include diverse concerts, ballet, theater and exhibitions. Cinemas will feature special film programs, and art lovers will be able to browse through several unique galleries. Exhibitions of Quebec handicrafts, including pottery, weaving, and woodworking, also are planned.

MOST OF THE events will be presented within Montreal, but some are scheduled in the other two cities of the Olympic triangle, Kingston and Ottawa. They will be staged under the sponsorship of the Artistic and Cultural Program Committee.

Also planned are numerous theater, music, mime, dance and poetry programs. Folk dances, children's shows and pop music concerts also will be

Safari

For $2,829 you can visit Africa, camp near Kilimanjaro!

The Chicago Zoological Society will sponsor its sixth African safari this year, scheduled to leave Feb. 11 for Kenya and Tanzania.

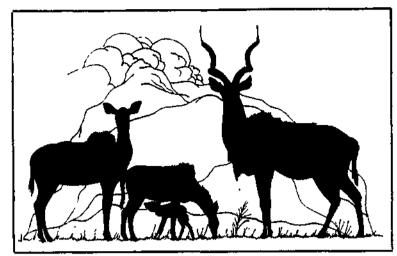

Camping at the foot of Mt. Kilimanjaro, tenting and exploring national game parks, and shopping in native markets for supplies all will be part of the 21-day African journey.

Dr. Gilbert Boese, associate director of Brookfield Zoo, will host the trip. Using the knowledge of Africa he has gained as leader of the society's last four safaris, plus his research into Western Sahel baboon life in 1971 and 1974. Dr. Boese has planned the journey as an in-depth look at East

RATHER THAN traveling quickly over the terrain, the safari will go into the land for an intimate view of Its people and animals.

The trip is scheduled to begin with an optional visit to the Frankfort, Germany, zoo and will include an evening reception hosted by African wildlife conservation representatives and a visit with the Serengeti Research Institute staff.

The safari will concentrate on game-viewing in Masai Mara Game Reserve, Kimana Sanctuary and the Nairobi, Serengeti, Lake Manyara, Amboseii and Tsavo West national parks. A field trip to Olduvai Gorge also is planned. Trip participants will stay at some of Africa's most famous lodges, including the Seroners in the Serengeti, Tsavo West's new Salt Lick, Keekorok in Masai Mara and Ngorongoro's Crater Lodge, on the lush 102-square-mile floor of the collapsed volcano.

ALL CAMPING during the safari will be done in tents, which will have lavatory-shower facilities and full kitchen services.

Serena Beach Hotel in Mombasa will be the sarari's last stop. Those on the trip will have two days to tour the 15th century city and swim in the Indian Ocean before saying good-bye to

The package price of the safari is $2,829 per person, including a $100 donation to the Chicago Zoological Society. The cost of the tour includes air transportation, lodging, meals except in Frankfurt, taxes, gratuities and entrance fees to game reserves and national parks.

A deposit of $150 per person is required for a firm reservation. The balance is payable six weeks before

For additional information, contact the Brookfield Zoo Development Dept., 485-0263 or 242-2630, ext 42.

Camp families get 'Tent America' offer

Families planning to hit the Bicentennial camping trails next summer can take advantage of Kampgrounds of America's "Tent America" plan.

The plan, which went into effect earlier this year, provides families with deluxe red, white and blue tents, already set up, for rental at selected campgrounds along highways throughout the United States. The overnight rental fee for a tent equipped with four comfortable cots is $8 or less for up to four people.

For information on campgrounds participating in the "Tent America" plan, write to Kampgrounds of America, Billings, Mont., 59103 or call 406-

One-week 'Eurojet Holidays' launched

Lufthansa offers city walking tours

Experienced travelers and guidebooks are generally unanimous in advising the best way to see a city is to expiore it on foot.

Subscribing to this theory of "city-seeing," Lufthansa Airlines is offering a series of one-week tours called "Eurojet Holidays" that give travelers the opportunity to independently explore two major European cities. Each of the five Eurojet holidays available begins or ends in Munich, lively capital of Bavaria, West Germany, set in a region of Alpine scenery, rococo castles and cathedrals.

A holiday combining Munich and Vienna with departure from New York is priced from $635. The trip includes three full days in Austria's capital, where vacationers can visit the glittering State Opera House, ride the giant ferris wheel in Prater Amusement Park and explore friendly wine taverns clustered in the subarb of Grinzing.

The Eurojet traveler who chooses the Munich-Rome 'rip, priced from $634, may see the Roman Forum, toss a coin in the Trevi Fountain, enjoy "La Dolce Vita" over a drink in a Via Veneto cafe and shop for leather goods on the Via Condotti.

LUFTHANSA'S COPENHAGEN-Munich package includes shopping in Den Permanente, for a selection of the best Danish crafts, and Stroget, a pedestrian mall where furs, porcelain, crystal and silver of fine Scandinavian design full the area's shops. On this trip, priced from $592, there will be plenty of time to take in performances of the Royal Danish Ballet or seek out the Matisse collection in the Royal Museum of Fine Art.

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, another possible combination with Munich, is a medieval walled city whose location on the Adriatic Sea has made it one of Europe's most popular resorts. The climate is mild year-round.

The compactness of Dubrovnik makes it easy to stroll the narrow streets and the path leading around the enclosing walls. The price of the Dubrovnik-Munich week begins at $615.

The other alternative available in combination with Munich is Paris in a package priced from $594. Travelers may wander along elegant residential streets on the He St. Louis in the middle of the River Seine, visit galleries and museums, shop in the Rue St. Honore area and relax in the cases of Boulevard St. Honore area and relax in the cases of Boulevard St. Germain des Pres on the Left Bank or Place de l'Opera on the

THE ONE-WEEK EUROJET departures from Chicago, New York, Boston and Philadelphia are scheduled through March, except between Dec. 15 and Jan. 4. A for the sightseeing tours and airport transfers at no rented car with unlimited mileage may be substituted

Attractively packaged at reasonable prices, the Scandinavian specials are worth investigating for travelers planning to be in Scandinavia for business or pleasure between now and mid-May.

A selection of one-week Viking Ski Vacations is available, featuring four Norwegian destinations where cross-country and downhill facilities are offered. Starting at $110 per person, plus nirfare, the ski tours include the popular resorts of Lillehammer. Geile and Voss in addition to Oslo, the only capital in Europe that can boast of being a winter sports center.

OTHER SNOW SPORTS vacations focus on Finland and include choices such as a cross-country skl instruction tour priced at $230, ski weeks in Finnish Lapland starting at $200 or a five-day Reindeer Safari into northernmost Lapland for $476. Anglers might want to try an ice fishing weekend on Finland's Lake Saimaa for $80. One tour currently available in Den-

Paramedics: doctors' emergency eyes, hands

threatened in some way

There is one group, however, that never has the luxury of taking anything for granted - our local paramedics.

Until three years ago these one-time firemen and/or ambulance attendants were helpless when they got to a patient who needed immediate doctor's care. Some patients died en route to the hospital, much to the frustration of the ambulance crew. when life-saving efforts might have saved them.

Then the idea of beginning lite-saving techniques on the spot was started in California and Florida, Mrs. Janet Schwettman of Inverness, Dr. Stanley Zydlo of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights and several area tire chiefs developed the local program, which started in December 1972.

The original program included eight departments in the Northwest suburbs, all reporting to a medical team at Northwest Community Hospital.

Within moments after the program was launched, the first trauma-stricken patient was on her way to Northwest, her life systems continued by the efforts of the paramedic crew.

Wallace snubs establishment pols

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) - It is not hard to figure out what Gov. George Wallace was up to when he delivered a colossal snub to his colleagues of the Democratic Governors Conference earlier this month. He was using them in his presidential campaign.

Wallace, along with nine other announced candidates for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, accepted an invitation to appear before the governors at their winter meeting Dec. 2. Everyone showed up except Wallace.

Had the Alabama governor made a diplomatic excuse when he was invited or even as late as the day of the conference, little could be made of his non-appearance. Like any candidate, he has the right to campaign in his own way and under conditions he believes best for himself.

BUT WALLACE FLEW all the way from Montgomery to Washington in time for lunch with the governors the day of the conference and then failed up for the candidate forum four hours later with the explanation that he was "preoccupied" at his hotel on state business.

It would be difficult to construe Wallace's refusal to appear before his colleagues as anything but a deliberate act of nose thumbing. And it is not hard to guess why the Alabaman did

Wallace, like Ronald Reagan, is running for president as an antipolitician. His campaign strategy is to sell the idea that he is different from the stereotype politician who talks "down home" to the voters and then forgets all about them when he wins the elec-

The candidate, even when he already holds public office, does everything he can to identify himself with the beleaguered citizen in a "them against us" view of the world.

how anyone can have the right to determine whether a baby lives or dies. Well what about the woman? A woman who has tried the so-called reliable birth control methods, who is single, miles from home - where her parents would reject her anyway - and whose only financial support is a 9-to-

Or the woman in junior high or high school. Is she to throw away her whole existence for a baby who would, no matter how much love she had for that baby, bring complete hardshin?

For a woman who is barely able to support herself, how in the world can you say that the love of or for a child would lessen that burden? When a woman can just about feed herself, is away from the house 10 hours every day, what chance would that baby have? If your answer is adoption, I would rather have an abortion than spend the rest of my life wondering, is my baby well-fed, wellclothed and surviving?

Granted, women should learn the different birth control methods and find one that suits her, but many women are either too embarrassed or too naive to go to a doctor or just plain forgetful. I don't think these women or their babies should be subjected to a life of utter destitution.

If everyone is so disgusted with abortions, why don't they get out and inform women about birth control? Before we condemn women for having abortions, let's make sure that every woman, no matter what age, is able to walk into any doctor's office and obtain answers to her questions and some form of birth control without being told that she's too young or she's not married.

Road death unheeded

On Saturday, Nov. 15, around 3 p.m. there was a hit and run accident on the corner of Smith and Dundee roads in Palatine Township. The victim was a 10-year-old male who was left on the side of the road

No police was called, nor did an ambulance come. The victim lay in the bushes beside the road while his life drained away. After the victim had died, two girls riding their bikes noticed the victim and recognized him. They picked him up and took him home.

The family, very grieved and heartbroken, took on the task of burying the family member.

The person who hit and ran did not have the compassion in his heart to stop and render help because he or she felt that it was just a dog. Just a dog, no. not just a dog but a cute little Scotty poo who had warmed the hearts of our family for 10 years.

We dearly miss our Scotty and hope that anyone who happens to hit a dog, please don't think of him as just a dog and leave him to die because someone close by loves and cares for him very much. The Barbara Maul Family

They were all there: Olde Frothingslosh, Texas Pride, Hauenstein, Rolling Rock and Dixie Beer. Cans were piled by the dozens on tables set up in the room. Youngsters elbowed their way through the crowds with boxes of multicolored cans. Thirtythree exhibitors bought table space to buy, sell or trade.

Hobbyist Joe Miller, 14, said he made $35 by Saturday afternoon which will be added to $700 in receipts from beer can sales over the past six years. Joe is a true beer can addict. He attends flea markets each weekend to hunt for rare brands and con-

He also had three cans of "Pearl Light," a rare find since the labels of the three cans display the 1975 football schedules for Texas A & M, the University of Texas and the University of Houston. An old can of "Kingsbury," brewed in Wisconsin is another treasure. The beer was made solely for export to Arabia, and the label carries a map of that nation along with an Arabic in-

Delegate plan not ordered; Democrats suffer setback

The Illinois Supreme Court Monday accept the Daley plan. ruled it would not order the lillnois Board of Elections to accept the Democratic State Central Committee's plan for delegate selection to next year's national convention.

The court issued the brief statement late in the afternoon and indicated an opinion will follow shortly.

The action, which comes on the heels of election board refusal to certify the Democratic plan marked another setback for Mayor Richard Daley to have a delegate selection plan approved.

The Democrats were required to present a plan for delegate certification by Monday, but they ran into a snag when the Illinois General Assembly failed to pass legislation last month which would have given them a plan which conformed with Democratic National Committee rules. The current state law does not conform with party rules, party officials reported. The plan would give a greater number of delegates to the congressional district controlled by Mayor Richard Daley at the expense of suburban and downstate districts.

Party officials were forced to develop a plan different than that set out by state law because of a successful court fight in 1972 which saw Daley and 58 other delegates barred from taking part in the convention.

Attorneys for Gov. Daniel Walker and the Committee on Illinois Government, a citizen's group formed by Walker aide Victor DeGrazia, have objected to the Democrats' plan saying the state law is in substantial compliance with party rules.

Some observers believe the new court fight might wind up in the U.S. Supreme Court or in another credentials challenge for Daley delegates next August at the national conanalysts said short-covering - replacing borrowed stock sold earlier - contributed to the market's strength. # Blood typing limited in proving parent

Please give me some information on blood tests. Can a 74-year-old man take a good test and prove if a 37-year-old girls is his or not? This is very important to me, so please, as soon as possible, give me your answer.

Blood types can sometimes be used to prove who is not the parent. That in itself is fairly complicated, because we all have two genes that determine the blood type of any of our offsprings. For example, a person with type A blood may have an A gene and an O gene, or two A genes. The O gene is the weak gene; you might even think of it as not being a blood type. Hence the A gene is dominant, but the parent can transmit the weak O gene.

A person with type B blood could have two B genes or a B and O gene. Thus a type A(AO) and type B couple could have an offspring with type A blood with AO genes, type B blood with BO genes, type O blood with two O genes, or type AB blood with A and B genes. Each parent can give only one of his genes to the offspring, but that will allow for a wide variety if the parents are AO and BO.

Whenever a child is type O, it is almost impossible to say anything about the parents except that neither parent can be type AB. Why? Because such a parent would have to transmit one gene, either A or B and that gene would be dominant if the other gene was O so such a child could not be type O. Type AB blood is quite rare, so this isn't all that helpful.

In general, blood typing might help you prove that a person is not your offspring, particularly if you also know the mother's blood type. Otherwise it is of limited usefulness. To show you how limited it is, if the baby in question had type O blood either parent can be type A, B or O. Since type O is the most common blood type, occuring in 47 per cent of the population, that makes it a bit difficult.

For more information on blood typing and parentage send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 6-4 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex., 78292.

Recently you mentioned cream substitutes. I would like to know your opinion on powdered skim milk. We use it daily for drinking, on cereal and everything. Occasionally I buy 1 per cent fertified skim milk at the store, but my son prefers the powdered milk because it is sweeter. Is there too much sugar in the powdered Either product is fine. The fortified skim milk which contains about 1 per cent fat is low enough in fat to be acceptable for almost any diet designed for low fat intake.

Both products contain a comparable amount of milk sugar, lactose. Unless you have lactose intolerance, the amount of milk sugar will not be harmful in any way.

While I often recommend non-fat dry milk powder for cooking and as a low-fat product which is high in good protein, I would also hope the diet would include a variety of protein by including some lean meat, fish or poultry. A good balanced mixture of relatively low fat foods usually produces the best results.

Leftover condiments? Refrigerate or toss

Dear Dorothy: Now that the barbecue season is over, what do I do with all those partly filled jars of relish and other condiments? Are they safe to use without refrigeration or should they be thrown out?—Mrs. J. Miller

You mean to say you don't eat hamburgers, hot dogs or spare ribs all through the year? Shame! Gentle needling aside, we all have to face the fact that nothing in the food line lasts indefinitely. I put all condiments in the refrigerator: mustard, mayonnaise, marmalade, jelly, cocktail olives and onions and so on. Even so, every once in a while one or another develops mold and has to be thrown out. What I'm saying is, if you see a use for any of your condiments in a reasonable time, refrigerate it. If you don't see any use ahead, toss it.

Dear Dorothy: Dark-colored polyester and also terylene pants come out of my wash with dusty-looking, scummy patches over them. I switched from soap to detergent with the same result — and also used washing soda and a peroxygen bleach. Do hope you can help, as I hate to face a cleaning bill for washables.—Mrs. Sandy Frey

Sounds as if the soil is being redeposited on the clothes. This usually comes from not enough detergent, overloading and too low a water temperature. Try hotter water and don't mix the load and see what happens.

No matter how I attacked the problem, folding a contour sheet has been a bugaboo with me for years. After buying a new set, I examined the instruction sheet with care. It said to put all four corners together in one hand, lay down on a flat surface surface, then smooth down the rest of the sheet. And after all these years!

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Bex 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Rives-Fitzgerald nuptials take place at St. Mark's

A small gathering of relatives and friends observed the wedding of Christine Rives, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip E. Rives, and Allen Fitzgerald, all of Mount Prospect. Allen is the son of Mrs. Josephine Fitzgerald of Chicago.

The 4:30 p.m. ceremony took place Nov. 15 in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Christine wore a pale blue gown of chiffen over taffeta accented by a jeweled coummberbund. At the neckline was her great-grandmother's cameo lavalier, worn as "something old." A blue net fingertip veil covered her head, and she carried a white bouquet of miniature roses, Starburst mums and baby's breath.

HER SISTER, Kay Johnson of Raleigh, N.C., was matron of honor and also soloist for the double ring service. She wore a full-length slate blue skirt with a silk blouse in blue, brick red and yellow print on a white ground. Her bouquet was of yellow mures.

The groom's brother, Louis Perna of Chicago, was best man.

A dinner for 17 guests followed at Plentywood Farm. Afterwards the couple left for a honeymoon in Wisconsin.

Christine is a '70 graduate of Prospect High School and has attended Harper College and Northern Illinois University.

Allen is a graduate of DeVry Institute, Chicago, and is employed by Mid-America Protective Coatings, Elk Grove Village. He and his bride will be living in Hoffman Estates.

They regret having kids

A survey commissioned for a national magazine indicates that one out of 10 American parents would not have children again if they were starting over.

In a copyrighted article, McCall's Magazine said the Gallup poll showed that about 5.5 million parents of children under 18 wouldn't want children again. The magazine said a similar survey 10 years ago at Princeton University showed only one out of 100 mothers regretted having children.

Four area games tonight; South scramble continues

by ART MUGALIAN

The only reason there's a favorite in the Mid-Suburban League South basketball race this year is because, well, there just HAS to be a favorite. At least, early in the season the coaches and fans need a team to call "the team to beat."

Before the conference slate began last Friday, Elk Grove was the team to beat, much to the consternation of Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. Now that Parmentier's Grens have been beaten by Conant, 37-36, in the Saxons' home court is a crucial showdown. Both teams have a chance to assert superiority in a division that is remarkably well-balanced. "It's a big one, no doubt about that," said Breault, whose team is a contender this year after four MSL seasons of futility. "I've been saying all along that our first three league games are vital."

The game will almost surely turn 46 win over Forest View in their openinto a battle of the presses. Both teams will be severely tested by aggressive defensive work.

> "We have a feeling we might be pressed in practice," Breault joked.

Prospect, also 1-0 in conference play, will host Conant in a hattle of early unbeatens, and Rolling Meadows (0-1) visits Hoffman Estates (0-0). In an MSL crossover game, Forest View (9-1) travels to Hersey (0-0) tonight.

All games ar scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

For Hoffman, the game against Meadows represents the first conference game that will count in the standings. Last Friday the Hawks dropped a 65-50 crossover decision to Buffalo Grove.

"This is what we've been pointing for, sid Hawk coach Jerry Segebrecht. "Our first conference game. The boys came out of the Buffalo Grove game on a positive note. We were disappointed that we didn't win, but we played competitively.'

Conant's able defense and the Cougars' deliberate style of play will be a test for Prospect, the defending MSL champion. The Knights knocked off Meadows on Friday by controlling the backboards and forcing nothing but outside shots. Another complete round of South-division games will be played Friday. North-division action, however, won't start until Dec. 19.

For the South teams, though, the season is here.

"I don't think the conference season boils down to this game with Schaumburg - for either of us," said Elk Grove coach Parmentier. "I do know that we've got one too many losses already and we can't afford to make too many more mistakes."

No misconduct in harrier meet: IHSA

BLOOMINGTON - Results of an investigation into the conduct of the 1975 Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Boys State Cross Country Meet, run Nov. 1 at Detweiller Park, Peoria, were reviewed by the Association's Board of Directors at its meeting Dec. 3 in the IHSA Office. In all the information available, the Board found absolutely no substantive evidence of misconduct by any competing team or individuals.

Results of the 1975 meet, as announced at the site of the State Final, are official, the Board noted.

'We have reviewed all available information conerning the running of this year's state meet, including motion pictures of the meet, and find no violation of rules nor any misconduct by any of the teams or individuals entered," said Executive Secretary Harry Fltzhugh. "Our investigation was conducted according to the policies of the Associaton, and in response to a request from a member school of the Association to determine if the meet outcome was fairly determined."

It's 6 a.m. The Woodfield parking lot is all but deserted. The stores are dark and footsteps echo inside the huge mall.

Jan Glerup slowly traces figures on the ice in the Woodfield rink with the patience and concentration of a trained athlete. Instructor Lars Jensen, leaning on the rail, watches closely as he sips a cup of coffee and puffs on a cigarette. He stops only to shout directions to the slender 15year-old boy.

Jan is training for the Danish National competition in figure skating Jan. 3. a meet that he hopes will lead him to the Olympics. He already has won the top award in the Danish junier and Scandinavian junier competitions, and he took a second in the Danish senior competition last year.

This is Jan's first trip to America, and he finds skating here much different than in Denmark. In his country the commune owns the rinks, and ice time is free. Here the rinks are private businesses, and customers pay to use them.

The young people also are different here; they are brought up with more freedom, said Jan. In Denmark a competitive skater trains for two or three hours without leaving the ice. Here, Jan said, skaters think nothing of leaving the ice to rest and talk with friends.

Jan has made some friends here although his English is limited. His hours here are spent skating and doing the school work he brought with him. Most of his thoughts today turn to figures, skates and the excitement of competition.

Plan northern waterfowl refuge

Herald area hunters may be able to cancel those long and expensive trips to southern Illinois for prize waterfowl gunning if the Illinois Dept. of Conservation follows through with a plan to establish a refuge in the northern portion of the state.

Conservation Director Tony Dean announced the allocation of $30,000 from 1975 Migratory waterfowl stamp sales for a site search and feasibility studies of the proposed northern Illinois waterfowl area project. Much of next year's stamp revenue is expected to go toward land acquisition.

Local duck and goose nunters have relied on such downstate waterfowl paradises as Carlyle, Union County and Horseshoe Lake refuge for their

Even central Illinois is blessed with ideal conditions along the valleys of the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers for consistent action.

A public meeting on the project is slated Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Capital Room South of Northern Illinois University's Holmes Student Center in DeKalb. Department biologists will explain the need for a northern waterfowl area and accept site recommendations from meeting attendees.

Each of these proposed sites will be visited and evaluated by mid-January, target date for completion of the initial search.

"We hope northern lillnois waterfowlers will turn out in large numbers and bring us plenty of site recommendations." Dean said. "The more proposals we receive, the better our chances of finding the ideal location for our new waterfowl area."

Criteria will include location, available acreage, previous waterfowl usage, condition of the land, natural habitat and water supply.

The second segment of the split sixday firearm deer season will be conducted Friday, Saturday and Sunday as hunters improve on the 11.613 whitetalls already taken during the opening three-day season in November.

Small game shooters are reminded that they must adhere to the proper dress code along with deer hunters over the weekend. Hunters are required to wear a cap and vest of solid and vivid red, orange, or yellow.

Preliminary estimates from the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources indicates that the 700,000 hunters who took to the field during the state's firearm deer season may harvest slightly less than the predicted 100,000

Based on traffic counts along major highways in Michigan, the two-week season produced upwards of 87,100 deer as opposed to the 92,040 taken in

The traffic count is probably "conservative" according to officials. Last year, for example, the preliminary total was just 75,800.

The breakdown of deer harvested this year shows 80,300 bucks and 6,800 antierless deer - a percentage of one deer for every eight hunters.

St. Viator triumphs; trails leader by one in Metro hockey action

Maine South and St. Viator each captured victories Sunday in the Chicago Metropolitan High School Hockey League as Maine South maintained its one-game lead over Viator in the Maine South beat Rolling Meadows, 7-0, and Viator edged Arlington, 3-1, in the league's most recent action at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. In other action Sunday, Fremd shut out Hersey, 4-0, and Palatine beat Maine

The victory for Maine South was its eighth in nine league games. Goalie Fischer posted the whitewash, lowering his goals-against average to 1.55. Fischer has allowed just 13 goals in nine games.

St. Viator upped its record to 7-2, one game behind Maine South and just a half-game ahead of Palatine.

Leading scorers after nine games are: Krippner (MS) 13 goals, 6 assists for 19 points; Aldana (Pal) 7-12-19; McSweeney (Pal) 10-8-18; Tabel (Her) 11-5-16; Langer (Pal) 7-9-16; Marshal (MS) 7-9-16) Gardner (Arl)

The top three goalies in the league are Turner of Palatine (1.50). Fischer (1.55), and Strang of St. Viator (1.75).

The league standings: Maine South 8-1, St. Viator 7-2, Palatine 6-2-1, Maine East 5-4, Arlington 4-4-1, Fremd 3-6, Rolling Meadows 2-7, Her-

League play resumes Thursday evening as St. Viator meets Rolling Meadows (7:30) and Arlington takes on Hersey (9:00) at Randhurst, and Fremd and Maine East collide (7:30) and Maine South faces Palatine (9:00) at the Oakton Recreation Center in Park Ridge.

Pappin happy away from 'boring' Black Hawks

OAKLAND (UPI) - The atmosphere with the Chicago Black Hawks was beginning to get "boring" so Jim Pappin felt it was time to move on.

The Black Hawks obliged and sent Pappin to the National Hockey League's doormat entry, the California Golden Seals - a distant move that caused some hard feelings between the player and his new team.

Pappin, a 36-year-old veteran who spent seven seasons with the Black Hawks, doesn't mean for it to sound as though he's angry about his past relationship with the perennial NHL powerhouse, but he said he had to speak out about his decision to leave Chi-

"The goals aren't that important," he said of the 36 he tallied last season. "I just thought the team was getting boring and things were starting to go downhill. We had some good teams and we never won the Stanley Cap. That was very disappointing.

"What is it they say - Familiarity breeds contempt? That was the problem in Chicago."

The move West, however, was met by some balking on the part of Pappin, who preferred a team closer to his home in Canada.

He achieved some notoriety in a protracted holdout which lasted through training camp and the first 11 games of the season.

"When I found out I was traded, I was hoping I could be somewhere closer to home. I don't have any regrets about leaving Chicago, since I was sort of getting stale there during the last two years," he said recently before a Seals game.

It's taken a while to readjust to the Seals' style, but Pappin has fitted in nicely - as a father image and whose ice savvy is appreciated.

"I've never been on a club like this," he said. "The most significant thing are the practices. On the Black Hawks, we were a veteran club and we didn't work on the fundamentals. We just did the regular exercises and that meant practices would become pretty

"Right now, though, I'm happy to be here, but I think we'll have to play a lot more consistently to win. We're not the kind of club that's going to go on any long winning streaks, so we have to go out every night and work hard."

In the back of his mind, however, Pappin might chuck it in.

"I suppose that if I don't like the way things are, I can still quit," he said. "But right now, I'm looking forward to playing here. We've got a lot of good younger players and a real interesting team."

Howe suspended for fighting official

The World Hockey Association Monday suspended ali-time leading scorer Gordie Howe for the first time in his 29-year career and slapped him with the biggest fine he has ever been levied for his actions in a game last Friday between his Houston Aeros and the Toronto Toros.

Howe, 47, the president of the Aeros who came out of retirement for the second straight season to play with the Avco Cup winners, was suspended for two games and fined $1,000 for an altercation which led to his ejection.

Also suspended for one game and fined $150 was Houston goaltender Ron Grahame, who was ejected in the first period of the Toros game. Both Howe and Grahame sat out Houston's game against Phoenix last Saturday.

Referee Ron Asseltine, 29, who ejected both Howe and Grahame from the Toros game, left the ice for a 15-minute period during the contest but later returned to finish the match. He handed in his resignation to the league after the game and was to meet Monday with WHA Vice President Bud Poile and Referee-in-Chief Bill Fri-

Howe allegedly elbowed Asseltine in protest of a penalty call.

Bulls deal Guokas to Kings

Veteran Chicago Bull guard Matt Guokas was traded Monday to the Kansas City Kings for cash and two future draft choices. Guokas, 31, came to the Bulls in a 1974 trade with the Buffalo Braves for Bob Weiss. He played in every Bull game last year, averaging 7.2 points per game. In 18 games this year, he's averaged 4.5 points per game.

In addition to an undisclosed cash price, the Bulls will receive the Kings' third round draft pick in 1978 and a second round pick in

The trade cuts the Bulls' roster to 11, making room for the return of mainstay Jerry Sloan, who's been on the injured list with a knee ailment for the past three weeks.

Oakland tops Denver, 17-10

Harold Hart and Pete Banaszak scored short yardage touchdowns and George Blanda added an 18-yard field goal with 2:21 left Monday night and the Oakland defense sacked Denver quarterbacks to times in leading the Raiders to their seventh straight victory, 17-10, over the Broncos.

The Broncos, 14-point underdogs, scored their only touchdown with six minutes remaining when Fran Lynch crossed over on a five-yard run to close the deficit to four points.

But the Raiders, thanks to a pair of pass interference calls against rookie cornerback Louis Wright plus a Denver personal foul, rolled to the Broncos' one and then settled for Blanda's field goal for a seven-point victory,

An 18-yard field goal by Jim Turner accounted for the other Denver points as the Broncos suffered their seventh loss in 12

Ohio State near perfect in poll

Ohio State, a perfect 11-0 through its regular season games, came within one point of perfection Monday in the penultimate ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches, the last before the national championship is decided after the New Year's Day bowl contests.

The Buckeyes had completed their regular slate two weeks ago but saw one of their major challengers, previously undefeated Texas A&M, fall by the wayside. Woody Hayes' squad received 379 of a possible 380 points, earning all but one of the 39 first place votes cast from the 42 eligible coaches, and widened its lead to 78 points, now over Oklahoma, which was given the other No. 1 designation.

The Aggies, on their way to a perfect season and a Cotton Bowl berth, were upset by Arkansas, 31-6, Saturday and dropped from second to sixth place at to-I. Meanwhile, the Razorbacks, now 9-2, jumped from a tie for 15th to rank 10th, the first time this season they've broken into the Top 10, and will go against 9-2 Georgia, ranked 12th, in the Cotton Bowl,

As'n result of the Aggies' loss - the only action for any of the Top 20 teams - Oklahoma, Alabama, Michigan and Nebraska each moved up one notch to fill the Nos. 2 through 5 positions, respectively,

The Sooners, 10-1, are headed for the Orange Bowl against the Wolverines, 8-1-2: the Crimson Tide, 10-1, will play eighth-ranked Penn State. 9-2. in the Sugar Bowl: and the Cornhuskers, 10-1, are headed for the Flesta Bowl against No. 7 Arizona State, at 11-0 the only other unbeaten major college team other than Ohio State. Neither the Sun Devils nor Nittany Lions changed positions since last week.

Texas, 9-2, remained ninth and will go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, where it will face 9.2 Colorado, which dropped one place to

Hoosiers top UPI coaches' poll

Indiana has been ranked as the number one team in college basketball by the United Press International board of coaches. The Hoosiers, 2-0 on the season, drew all first place votes cast. Marquette. 2-0. placed second followed by Maryland 4-0, in third place, North Carolina in fourth and UCLA in fifth.

Rounding out the top ten are Tennessee, Louisville, Notre Dame, Arizona and Alabama. • The San Francisco Glants traded lefthanded pitcher Pete Falcone to the St. Louis Cardinals for third baseman Ken Reitz Monday night.

North volleyball race much tighter than South's in final MSL week

(Editor's Note: One in a series of weekly features on area volleyball teams.)

by PAUL LOGAN

The division champions of the Mid-Suburban League were just about determined last week.

Thanks to a victory over Forest View, Prospect only has to win one of its two remaining games to repeat as the South Division champ.

In the North Division, deciding the title could be a little more complicated. Wheeling's big win over Buffalo Grove could help produce a three-

If Wheeling and Hersey win tonight, the title might not be determined until the last game of the Wheeling-Hersey matchup on Thursday. If Hersey defeats Wheeling, the margin of victory must be by eight points or more. The point margin will break any tie. Presently, Hersey (2-1) and Buffalo Grove (4-1) are minus five points each with Wheeling (3-0) having plus 10. So right now Wheeling's in the driver's seat.

Meanwhile, the rest of the schools have to be content with preparing for the state tournament in January.

Hoffman Estates is in third place in the South Division with a 3-2 record. Over-all, the Hawks are 5-3. One of those non-divisional victories came over Buffalo Grove - a potential MSL champ. Unfortunately for Coach Donna Korda, cross-divisional games

Korda said her team was unique because six of the nine people she has played could "both set and spike. Skill-wise, this makes us just about tops in the conference. Most teams have only two setters."

This versatility might be just the edge the Hawks need to advance in the state tourney.

They also have a "super, super, super athlete," according to Korda, in Clare Dowling. This all-round athlete is a senior, playing varsity volleyball every year the school's had the sport.

Dowling was all-conference last year as was Mary Hill, a junior. Hill is a superb setter.

Two other top performers are also seniors - Mary Beth Leonard and Carol Willuweit. These two and Dowling are outstanding spikers and setters.

Another South Division team that's having a winning season but must wait for the tournament is Schaumburg, Coach Mary Maher's Saxons opened their season with an impressive cross-over victory of Wheeling.

"In the first game we were behind 16-2, then we won 20-16," said Maher of the super comeback. The Saxons swept Wheeling by winning the second 20-10. "Maybe they let up just a little bit after Wheeling . . ."

Schaumburg, 4-3 over-all and 2-2 in the South, also had high hopes. Maher had an experienced team which nearly won the Maine West District last year. Now they must prepare to prove themselves all over again.

"We're a little stronger offensively and we move better," explained Maher. "We're starting to work as a team now."

Five juniors who were starters last vear are Alice Thomas. Laurie Minarcik. Lois Wisniewski, Diane DeWolf and Cathy Svoboda.

Two other players switch off in the starting role — Carla Seltzer and Rose Deneen. Seltzer was a starter last year. Mary Alessi was moved up

Trojans entertain Hawks tonight

The Harper Hawks step back into but stayed in the game until the final the conference basketball fray tonight as they trave! to Rock Valley to face Chuck Behrends' Trojans at 8 p.m.

Rover Bechloid's Hawks have been stunned by North Central Community College Conference opponents in their last two outings.

Illinois Valley took advantage of some ill-timed Harper turnovers to forge a 107-79 win.

Saturday night on the St. Viator floor Harper was massacred on the backboards by a physical Joliet squad minutes, ultimately losing 81-73.

It was Harper's fifth loss in six tries this year and came despite the offensive fireworks of Jim Arden, who gunned in 27 points.

But at 6-2 Arden is the weakest of Harper's three strongest rebounders, the others being forward Wally Butman and center Scott Green, and if Harper is to beat another physical club, Rock Valley, he must contribute more than the zero rebounds he grabbed against Joliet.

Prospect wrestlers fifth in Plainfield tournament

Bob Rossdeutcher, Todd Doney and Carl Shimmelmann led the way as Prospect wrestled to a fifth place finish at the Plainfield invitational tournament Saturday.

Rossdeutcher at 138, Doney at 155 and 167-pound Shimmelman all notched runnerup individual finishes, winning their first two bouts and then losing in the finals. Shimmelman dropped a 5-2 heartbreaker to Round Lake's entry in the championship match and Doney was nudged out 5-0 in the 138-pound finale by a local grappler.

Round Lake swept to top honors in the eight-team meet, while Deerfield finished second, Plainfield third and Loyola fourth. The Knights collected 75½ points en route to their fifth place windup.

Other top Prospect point getters included Terry Freeman at 185 and Jeff Munn at 98, both taking thirds, and John Borden (112) and heavyweight Don Meyer with fourths. Meyer dropped his opener 5-1 to drop into the consolation bracket and then came back with two impressive pins.

Ask Andy

Jellyfish reproduce in 3 stages

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set to the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Wendy Dotson, 11, of Asheville, N.C., for her question:

HOW DOES A JELLYFISH BREED?

The various jellylishes range in size from a spectacle lens to a glass bowl maybe seven feet wide. As they float through the sea, they look like plastic umbrellas with trailing fringes, opening and closing as they go. There are males and females, and the offspring develop through three amazing stages, one of which resembles a stack of lancy saucers.

The average jellyfish is named Aurelia, and he enjoys life in most of the global oceans. His glassy umbrella is from three inches to almost a foot wide. On the top is a four-leaf clover design in a lovely shade of blue or purple. The male and the female look alike, and their colorful crowns are the regions where the male and female cells are created.

The male cells are shed into the water. The female's are retained inside her jellified body and a few drifting male cells stream in with the water. They fertilize the female cells to form whiskery, oval-shape larvas called planulas. These helpless midgets are shed out into the sea to take their chances.

A lucky planula survives the hungry fishes and soon settles down on a solid surface under the sea. It becomes a small polyp with a crown of tentacles, used to gather food. The infant jellyfish may remain in the polyp stage for several months, feeding and sprouting a few more polyps like itself.

The next stage usually occurs in fall or winter. The polyp grows tall, and a series of grooves appears around its trunk. The grooves develop fringes which eventually become tentacles. The remarkable teenager is called a scyphistoma, and it looks for all the world like a pile of mini-saucers.

Each saucer is actually an immature adult, called an ephyra. When the one at the top of the pile is ready to go, it breaks off and swims away to feed and grow and finally become an adult jellyfish, male or female. The adult stage is called a medusa. Aurelia and most other common jellyfishes are medusas that breed and multiply in the same remarkable

WHAT DOES A LADYBUG EAT?

Most insects are pests in the garden because they devour our favorite plants, fruits and flowers. But the ladybug is always welcome. She is a little beetle-type insect with a shiny bright back. Her cheerful coat may be red or yellow, always accented with a few black dots. Her favorite food is the meat of other insects - especially the insects that spoil our gardens.

If you have a rose tree, you know that its worst enemies are aphids creepy little critters that sap its juices. Well, ladybug beetles just love to feast on those pesky aphids. They also enjoy the wretched scale insects that attack orange groves and other orchards. For this reason, growers often buy ladybugs by the pint. The little beetles help to protect flower and vegetable gardens by feasting on other insects. And about 3,000 lady-

The forcing two bid makes its debut

The forcing two bid with the bust two notrump response was invented by Theodore Lightner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Oswald Jacoby back in 1929. Here is a hand that led us to that invention.

Jacoby, who sat South, opened one spade. He hoped that he would get a second chance and he did when the unfortunate East player reopened with two clubs. Young Jacoby simply jumped to seven hearts.

The bid was spectacular and quite unsound, but it succeeded because

Dancer's ability highlights ballet strength, drama

Lawrence Rhodes is without doubt the most exciting part of watching the Pennsylvania Ballet, which briefly visited the Auditorium Theatre for two performances last weekend.

The press releases describe Rhodes as "a dancer's dancer," referring to his incredible blend of sure smooth technique and dramatic understatement. His movements fill the empty spaces around him and each flick of the wrist is an artistic state-

Chicago saw Rhodes last year with the Eliot Feld Ballet. He has since returned to his home base with the Pennsylvania Ballet, a troupe of 29 now celebrating its 10th anniversary.

Rhodes' strength comes in part from creating a sense of unity with the company. Such was the case in the slow and tactile "Adagio Hammerklavier" by Hans van Manen which opened Friday's program.

WITH UNDERWATER type movements, three couples used the gentle plano music to push and pull against each other. The piece is marked by sudden spasms as dancers flex into grotesque positions, providing contrast to the lyric lifts and poses.

Rhodes and his partner Marcia Darhower showed incredible control in a slow motion section where movement changed so gradually that it was almost imperceptible. In the solo section. Rhodes exhibited his turns and jumps with a quickness and clarity, each movement adding to the over-all

The dramatic highpoint of the evening, however, was "In Retrospect" by Robert Rodham, which shows Rhodes looking back on a lifetime. Set to Benjamin Britten's music, the piece is a compelling look at man's attempts to get in touch with his past.

Rhodes, almost continually on stage, exhibits desperation, confusion and frenzy as he tries to interact with

Mid-week review

the dance couples who represent his

THE PENNSYLVANIA dancers are well trained and handle their roles cleanly although with little excitement. Joanne Danto, who is loose and limber with an amazing extension, is pleasing to watch as she plays with body line.

Likewise, Constance Ross and Barry Leon are playful and spirited in their performance. Leon moved well with Rhodes through a series of beats and jumps that gradually grew to include all six male dancers in the piece.

Balanchine's "Scotch Symphony" was the letdown of the evening despite Alba Calzada's fluid arms and delicate portrayal of the sylph. The piece is like a Scottish "La Sylphide," and the choreography is lackluster.

There were too many romantic poses and too much stereotyped Highland fling. It was difficult to tell if the dancers could have given the piece more life, but "Scotch Symphony" was a down note on which to end the performance.

The Pennsylvania Ballet's brief visit should be enough to whet Chicago's taste for more of this successful regional ballet. Hopefully next year the Windy City will rate a lengthier stay.

Choir's Yule concert Sunday

The Harper-Elk Grove Festival Chorus will present a Christmas concert Sunday.

Two major pieces will be performed. Schubert's "Mass in G" and Christmas Festival" by Owens and

"Mass in G" will be performed by the chorus, orchestra and soloist Betty Myers, Mount Prospect; Vittorio Giammarusco, Arlington Heights, and Werner Harms, Highland Park.

Soloists for "Christmas Festival" will include Harper College student Christina Petersen, Schaumburg; Art Gardiner, Arlington Heights, and Camille Tholl, Marv Kinney and Morris Pumphrey, all of Elk Grove Village.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

Tickets are $1 for students through high school and $2 for adults, and will be available at the door.

'Winnie-the-Pooh' at Christmas party

"A Day in the Forest with Winniethe Pooh" will be performed by the Players of Schaumburg at 2 p.m. Saturday at Rolling Meadows High School.

The play is part of a Christmas party given by the Council On Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD). Other party events include a magic show by C. L. the magician and a visit from Santa Claus, complete with a gift for everyone. Tickets for the party are $2 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Reserved seats may be obtained by calling 358-1273 or 593-7167. Group rates are available. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Judge Smigiel: 3rd District innovator

Retiring reformer tells of his years on the bench

by MIKE KLEIN

The little postcard-sized wood plaque hanging from Andy Smigiel's bulletin board advised him, "Kwitchurbelyakin." Everyone knows that means, "Quit your belly-achin"

On his telephone, the Third Municipal District court's presiding judge keeps a little message which reminds, "Something you hear gets you all shook up. Calm down and think clearly. Things aren't so bad."

"I'm full of those things." Smigiel says, glancing around for more proverbs. "Here's one that I think's best. It says, 'A Prayer for the Day. Dear Lord, Please help me to keep my big mouth shut until I know what I'm talking about,"

THERE IS SO much more. Smigiel's office at the Third Municipal District court building in Niles also features a three-foot gavel given to him for being the "long knocker" at a golf tournament.

"It's really a misnomer," Smigiel jokes. "I'm not a long knocker at all." Smugiel is no longer the Third Municipal District's presiding judge. The time has come to seek other pastures. He retired last week.

When Smigiel was a younger man, he thought retirement at age 55 would he appropriate. But a dozen years ago, when he was 52, Smigiel's first wife, Sally, died unexpectedly.

There was the immediate problem of caring for 15-and 18-year-old daughters. "I didn't know the kids too well," Smigiel admits today.

AND HE CERTAINLY couldn't retire. "For nine years, I kept myself active in court work just to avoid loneliness," Smigiel related.

He left the business of courts behind long enough three years ago to marry the former Adeline Janus, and they live in Park Ridge.

The daughters have grown up to become Mrs. Janice (Richard) Gould and Mrs. Judith (Robert) Bush. Including grandchildren from his wife's previous marriage, there will be presents from Santa Claus for seven grandchildren this year.

Smigiel has served as presiding judge of the Third Municipal District since September 1966. He won't say the district was previously a shambles, but Smigiel's reforms are Most notably, they include establishment of a Third District juvenile court, staggered court calls, prompt bond hearings and an avenue for emergency judgment.

BUT ANY ONE MAN can only contribute so much of his life. Smigiel complains he has had too little time for golf and travel. For those reasons, he is getting out.

"I'm 64 and one-half years old," Smigiel says, although a Paul Bunyan-like handshake would belie those years. At 6-feet-2, he is still a strong

"There's always the question of how much more time do I have for a really leisurely life. This is the time to

So Smigiel, who has presided over 10 judges in an area greater than 100 square miles and encompassing 600,000 citizens, will leave his secondfloor office in the court building at Touhy and Milwaukee avenues.

But you could hardly classify Smigiel's retirement as "taking it easy." Smigiel has been offered directorships by a bank and a savings and loan. There are also plans to hit the legal trail again with his two sons-in-law, "golf and travel permitting."

"I VERY DESPERATELY need an activity all the time," Smigiel says. "I can't sit and curl up with a book or watch television for hours." Literally, he can't retire.

The legal trail has developed its lighter moments for Smigiel who used a $1,000 scholarship from the Chicago Daily News to attend night school, ending in a Bachelor of Law degree from the Kent College of Law. That was later superseded by a Juris Doc-

Smigiel remembers one McHenry County case about 20 years ago in which he represented the defendant. He hadn't bargained for a barber, but he got one.

"I remember going into the address given to me as the courthouse," Smigiel said. "It turned out to be a barber shop with an office in front which served as the courtroom.

"When I asked for the judge, I was advised by the barber that he was the judge," Smigiel said. "He cut a head of hair before he'd hear my case." AND WHEN COURT had finished, Smigiel left with the notion that his client had also been "clipped." Then there was the day in Niles Court when officers presented then Magistrate Smigiel with two prisoners who allegedly had been using credit cards to defraud innkeepers and merchants.

"When they approached the bench, one individual was in male dress and the other in female dress but with a very heavy beard," Smigiel said. "I just asked, 'What is this?' '

The best years of Smigiel's legal career are past. The work has been long and hard. Smigiel is proud that he could bring sound legal principles plus good administration to the Third Municipal District.

He says the suburban districts are much easier to organize and control than the Circuit Courts in Chicago.

Over the years, Smigiel hasn't been hesitant to remove any judge or other person who was making deals on the side. And Smigiel admits more than just one or two have been canned.

Still others have called him at home 'requesting" special favors. Smigiel has a standard response for those persons. He tells them, "This isn't Chi-

Yes, Efrain, you did win

When Efrain Cruz presented his winning $10,000 Illinois lottery ticket at a state claim center, he had a hunch the clerk wasn't handling the paperwork right.

"But then I thought, 'If you can't trust them, who can you trust," Crue said, and he went home.

The money didn't come. Instead. Cruz got a letter that stunned him. The lottery said he hadn't won after all.

Thus began a case unique in the Illinois lottery's 16-month history - suspected wrongdoing on the part of a person or persons handling lottery

Cruz, 38, foreman at an Aurora manufacturing company, bought two of the state's "instant lottery" tickets to surprise his wife, Blanca, 37, who was in the hospital.

"When I peeled it off, I couldn't believe it," he said. The numbers totaled 21, which meant he had won $10,000. Cruz showed the ticket to his wife's hospital roommate and friends.

The lottery said the ticket he submitted had numbers totaling 23, which wins nothing.

Cruz put together a list of his witnesses, and yelled fraud. An in-

'Rooming-in' service for new mothers

Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, has inaugurated a "rooming-in" program under which mothers may keep their newborn infant at their bedside.

The program is intended to give new mothers, and fathers, greater opportunity to know and care for their baby during its first days of life, a hospital spokesman said.

The mother may have her baby at her bedside in a bassinet for as long as she wishes from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., except for feedings and during regular visiting hours.

11 Herald carriers win in 2nd holiday drawing

Eleven Herald carriers have won prizes in the second drawing of the 'Holiday Hallelujah Raffie'' in which all carriers have an opportunity to win trips, prizes and cash.

For eight weeks, each carrier who maintains the same number of subscribers on his route each week as on Nov. 21 will be eligible for prizes in the regular raffle.

For every new subscriber a carrier turns in each week, he gets one chance in the "grand prize" raffle.

In the regular raffle, winners of a trip to Woodside Ranch, Mauston, Wis., are John Mesa, Arlington Heights; Rich Synon, Des Plaines; Gary Brigham, Rolling Meadows, and Dave Schindler, Wheeling.

Savings bonds went to Brad Hacker, Palatine, and Randy Klotz, Mount Prospect. Ten dollars cash was won by Dan Mrozek and Doug Richards, both of Arlington Heights. In the grand prize raffle, Dan Flo-

Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michlgan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291," Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure, the jet commander descended through the altitude of the TWA flight over South Bend, Ind.

The second incident involved a twin engine Cessna en route to Pal-Waukee Airport which crossed in front of North Central flight 112 about 16 miles southeast of Janesville, Wis.

The new "Conflict Alert" system being installed at the Chicago Air Route Traffic Control Center in Aurora is designed to prevent potentially dangerous controller errors.

FAA sppokesmen said the new system was planned for installation long before the recent rash of near misses. This program has been in the test phase since February in Kansas City, so the program was coming," said John Martin, automation specialist for

CURRENTLY ONLY Kansas City and Fort Worth have the Conflict Alert equipment operating, although it will soon be in operation nationwide. "All centers are shooting to have it on the air this month," Martin said.

The special warning equipment is based on a computer which defines a hockey puck-shaped disc around each tracked aircraft. The computer then projects where the disc will be in two minutes. If any two discs overlap, within the two-minute projection, a conflict alert is declared.

The controller is made aware of the alert by rapid flashing on his video screen. The computer will automatically provide needed plane identification, altitude and other informa-

"The controller, when he gets this alert, has two minutes to separate these aircraft," Martin said, noting the controller can order a climb, a descent or a turn by one or both aircraft.

City officials to ponder:

'What do we do when Behrel steps down?

Des Plaines city officials will begin meeting next month to determine what steps to take in anticipation of the departure of Mayor Herbert H. Behrel next year.

Ald Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city council's city code and judiciary committee, sald that with the mayor's retirement approaching officials will "have to come to grips with it fairly early."

Behrel announced last May he would leave office six to seven months before his term expires. He plans to retire with his wife to Sun City, Ariz.

"I THINK WE should move quickly to come up with a plan," Abrams said. "There are several issues that we have to deal with soon."

One matter that must be decided by the city council is who will succeed Behrel between the time he leaves office and the 1977 municipal election. Officials also must decide whether to leave the mayor's post fulltime or to switch to a part-time mayor with a city monager.

announced candidate for Behrel's job. Several other aldermen, however, reportedly are interested in becoming acting mayor after Behrel leaves.

Abrams said that early next year his committee will ask that any aldermen interested in serving as acting mayor announce their candidacy. An acting mayor would then be chosen by the city council, he said.

ABRAMS SAID HE would like the city council to make a decision soon so that the person chosen as acting mayor can work with Behrel before Behrel leaves the city. "I think it's a good idea to have the mayor work with his successor to ensure that there is an orderly transition," he

Before the city council chooses a successor for Behrel, however, aldermen must determine whether the post is to remain full time or become part time. Reportedly several aldermen interested in the post would apply only if it is made part time.

Abrams said though some city officials have suggested a referendum to determine whether the mayor's post should be made part time, that does not appear likely.

"I think that is a dead issue if for no other reason than the time frame," he said. "I don't think there's enough time for a referendum.

Seitz reaffirms mayor post bid

Des Plaines Ald. John Seitz, 7th, said Monday he is interested in becoming mayor regardless of whether it is a full-time or part-time post.

The post is full-time, but city officials will decide in the near future whether it is to be made a part-time post after Mayor Herbert H. Behrel leaves office next year.

Seitz, a teacher at Oakton Community College, last summer said he was interested in becoming acting mayor and became the first declared candidate for the 1977 mayoral race. At the time, he said taking the job full-time would depend on whether he could obtain a leave of absence from his pre-

Hearing set on funding for Neve land purchase

will conduct a hearing Thursday on a controversial request by the Des Plaines Park District for a federal grant to purchase the Neve estate, 280 Hawthorne Ln.

The controversy erupted last week when Helen and Marion Neve, owners of the property, found out the park district was considering the site for a public park. The five-acre tract is the site of an old Victorian home and two greenhouses which the Neve sisters own and operate. The sisters and residents of the area oppose acquisition of the property by the park district and also are angry the park district kept secret its plans to obtain the land. The Neves learned of the plans through published reports in a newspaper. THE HEARING before the state is

> The Neve sisters have said they or their attorney will attend the hearing in an attempt to block the park district's effort. Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation, said he will attend the hearing, but does not expect the state to reach a decision on the grant request. He said the park district does not expect to have a public meeting to discuss the controversy until the state makes a decision on the grant.

"Our board has said no to that to this point," he said. "If the grant isn't approved the thing will be dropped, and if it is approved I imagine they would sit down and talk about it."

Kunkel said he does not expect action by the state on the federal grant request until at least Jan. 1.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial abiline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horrace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on asmall scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

'You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously - like pros. These in-

The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callaban said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291." Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure, the jet commander descended through

Parks stymied; need annex near Old Willow Rd.

Plans to develop new park facilities in unincorporated Wheeling Township will be stymied unless a voluntary annexation agreement can be reached with owners of the Lake Run apartment complex on Old Willow Road.

The Wheeling and River Trails park districts hope to reach a settlement with owners of the 20-acres in order to proceed with annexation and park development plans. So far, neither side is close to an agreement.

Wheeling officials met with representatives of the owners Saturday and

Lake County alcohol unit gets special license

Lake County's alcohol detoxification unit in Waukegan has received an experimental license from the state which allows the unit to treat alcoholics through medical means.

The license is a hospital license, with severe restrictions placed on it. and is the first such license to be issued in Illinois, said James Rabishaw, Lake County Health Clinics director.

A new state law decriminalizing public intoxication will go into effect July 1976 The law requires medical treatment, rather than juit sentences. for alcoholics.

Alcohol detoxification centers such as the one in Lake County will be needed throughout the state when the law goes into effect. Lake County is ahead of most of the state in starting the detoxification unit. RABISHAW COMMENTED that he

The Wheeling Park District must reach an agreement in order to open a corridor for annexation of the Quincy Park quadrominium apartments, also located on Old Willow Road. State law prohibits annexation of single parcels of 20 acres or more by referendum without prior consent of

UNLESS AN agreement is worked out, only the Gladstone Glen apartment complex at Wolf and Old Willow roads could be annexed to the Wheeling district, and officiald don't believe the additional tax revenues would support new park construction.

A tentative December annexation referendum was postponed pending the outcome of talks.

David Phillips, Wheeling Park District director, said representatives of the owners reacted favorably Saturday to annexation proposals.

"I think they looked favorably on our proposals," Phillips said. "We hope to hear back from them in a couple of weeks." Phillips would not disclose the names of the owner and niether would the Lake Run apartment management.

Marvin Weiss, River Trails Park District director, said park officials want a meeting with owners to discuss an annexation agreement of their

THE DISTRICT HAS expressed interest in annexation since both Gladstone Glen and Quincy Park rejected an Oct. 25 annexation referendum. Weiss said a park for the Willow River area, located at Old Willow and River roads, cannot be built until the tax base is broadened. The Willow River area was the only one which voted to join the River Trails Park District.

"We'd like to talk to them to get their feelings about it," said Weiss. "Before we could build a new park for the area, we'd need to annex some more property."

Weiss said the park board plans to meet Thursday to discuss its options.

Should the 20 acres come into the River Trails Park District, Gladstone Glen and Quincy Park would be surrounded by the district, leaving both areas open to forcible annexation.

"At this point we're not sure which direction we'll go." Welss said. "The park board needs to solidify its

Grant sought for sewer survey

Wheeling officials will seek a $133,425 federal grant for a survey of the village's sewer system.

The village board voted Monday to submit an application to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the funds. The village, however, must put up $44,000 to match the subsidy, officials said.

Assistant Village Mgr. Thomas Marcus said the sewer survey will Village Mgr. George Passolt said ad-

Officials will use the results to schedule repairs where needed, Marcus said, adding the village must make the repairs to conform with Metropolitan Sanitary District standards for sewer maintenance.

FUNDS HAVE not been budgeted for the village's share of the expense, but village reserve finances could be used, Passolt said.

In other business, officials postponed action on a proposed change in the village fire limits ordinance that would ban construction of frame areas Trustee Charles Kerr asked the board to let the matter remain in committee pending receipt of additional information on building codes.

Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen has said the limits are outdated and should be stricken from the code to upgrade the village's fire rating.

The matter will be taken up at a later meeting of the village board.

'Budget to force health cutbacks in Lake County'

The Lake County Health Dept. can live with the new county budget, but 'our day of reckoning is coming," Dr. Steven Potsic, health department executive director said Monday.

Potsic had warned earlier some programs would have to be eliminated if the proposed budget was approved. County board members last week added .6 of a cent per $100 of assessed valuation to the health department levy, amounting to an additional $110,000 for the department.

The department had requested a $2.65 million total levy, but the final figure was $2.45 million, Potsic said.

An alcohol outpatient program to be run in conjunction with the in-patient service of the Lake County Health Clinics alcohol detoxification unit will have to be postponed, Potsic said. "Many of our programs will suffer because vacancies will not be filled as they occur," Potsic said.

Other cuts included educational meetings and conferences for staff members, Potsic said.

In addition to the cuts, the health department will have to spend $33,000 of the cash on hand in the health fund.

The health fund must maintain enough money to cover six months of operating expenses amounting to $1.2 million, Potsic said.

"We will be hard pressed at the end of the year to dip further into the fund. I'm concerned about next December. Our day of reckoning is coming," Potsic said.

Rescue makes a hero of maintenance man

Paul Dostal of Hoffman Estates had been working only 21/2 weeks for the Sheffield Towne maintenance crew. On Monday, he became the hero of the Schaumburg townhouse devel-

Dostal, 18, saved a youngster from drowning by pulling him from the project's swimming pool.

"One of the girls told me there were kids in the pool," Dostal recalled. "I just ran out there. He said a companion was holding the youngster who appeared to be about 7 years old, but the boy was slipping from his friend's grasp.

Dostal, rushed over, pulled the boy from the pool and wrapped him in a blanket and his coat.

"He started to cry and said thank you and was asking if I could get his shoe," Dostal said. "It was at the bottom of the pool."

Lydia Kinley, wife of the president of the Sheffield Towne Homeowners' Assn., witnessed the rescue. She said the boy and the companion had apparently climbed over the fence surrounding the swimming pool.

The two were apparently going to walk on the thin ice in the deep end of the L-shaped pool, and the youngster fell in. Mrs. Kinley ran from her house and climbed the fence, but Dos-tal had already saved the boy. Neither Dostal nor Mrs. Kinley knew the identities of the two boys.

'Funds fate good with 'city' vote'

Officials for park, library and fire districts serving Prospect Heights have said incorporation of the area would help ensure their future financial stability.

Spokesmen for the districts said incorporation would bring to an end disannexations that occur when portions of the community are annexed to neighboring suburbs served by other districts or taxing bodies.

Such piecemeal disannexations, officials said, decrease the districts' tax

Although the districts' boundaries would not be changed if Prospect Heights residents decided to incorporate, officials said they would no longer fear loss of "customers" and tax revenues.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS residents will go to the polls Jan. 31 to decide

"Right now the districts are vulnerable to annexation by Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Wheeling. We are not protected by the boundaries of a municipality," said Joyce Armington of the Prospect Heights Li-

The library district has lost residents through annexations to nearby suburbs since the 1950's when the district was formed, she said.

The most recent annexations have been to Arlington Heights, where the village provides library service. Prospect Heights therefore has lost taxpayers and patrons, she said.

"THE FACT THAT we are never sure how many people will be in the district each year paying taxes is a hinderance to us because we can only plan one year at a time," Mrs. Armington said.

The Prospect Heights Library Board has said it will challenge in court any future disconnections from the district "because we cannot afford to keep losing parcels," she said-

'Incorporation would in no way affect our library tax rate. It would just assure us that the people we serve, who are in the library district now. will remain in the district so that we can begin some long-range planning,' Mrs. Armington said.

Kent Krautstrunk, director of the Prospect Heights Park District, said incorporation would ensure district stability and provide better police protection against vandalism.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS is currently served by the Cook County Sheriff's Police. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., the group behind incorporation, has said the new city would provide additional police pro-

"There also would be more opportunities for the park district to apply for and receive state and federal funding because it would be part of a municipality, Krautstrunk said.

'There could also be joint cooperation between the park district and city in the purchase and use of equipment and supplies that would save the taxpayers money," he said.

Norman Johnson, president of the Prospect Heights Rural Fire District, agreed with Krautstrunk, saying the district's tax rate and boundaries would remain the same despite incorporation.

THE FIRE DISTRICT also has lost numerous parcels during the last 10 years to Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights, Johnson said. Residents of those areas only pay special taxes used to retire the bonds which paid for the new fire station a 10 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

"We're all right for another seven years until those bonds are fully retired, but after that, I don't think we'll make it," he said.

"It's hard enough to make ends meet now with a volunteer force because we keep losing our tax base,' he said.

Johnson estimates that the fire district has lost about $40,000 in taxes during the past 10 years because of the disannexation of parcels.

While Johnson said incorporation would prevent some disannexations. the future City of Prospect Heights could take over fire protection duties from the district.

The suit, filed last week by Garden City Disposal Co. in Cook County Circuit Court, names Villago Pres. Edword A Fabish, Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson and Village Clerk Verna L. Clayton. It also names James M. Raupp, owner of Raupp Disposal Co. and Buffalo Grove Disposal Co., 745 McHeury Rd., Wheeling.

Garden City Disposal Co., Rosemont, applied for a business license last May but its application was denied because of a village ordinance which allows the issuance of only three licenses each year.

THE THREE licenses currently are issued to Raupp Disposal Co., Buffalo Grove Disposal Co. and Wheeling Disposal Inc., 305 Industrial Ln.

Garden City in the suit charged that Raupp, the owner of two garbage firms doing business in Buffalo Grove. May 1, 1969.

In addition to the cuts, the health department will have to spend $33,000 of the cash on hand in the health fund.

The health fund must maintain enough money to cover six months of operating expenses amounting to $1.2 million, Potsic said.

"We will be hard pressed at the end of the year to dip further into the fund. I'm concerned about next December. Our day of reckoning is coming," Potsic said.

Lake County alcohol unit gets special license

Lake County's alcohol detoxification unit in Waukegan has received an experimental license from the state which allows the unit to treat alcoholics through medical means.

The license is a hospital license, with severe restrictions placed on it, and is the first such license to be issued in Illinois, said James Rabishaw, Lake County Health Clinics director.

A new state law decriminalizing public intoxication will go into effect July 1976. The law requires medical treatment, rather than jail sentences, for alcoholics.

Alcohol detoxification centers such as the one in Lake County will be needed throughout the state when the law goes into effect. Lake County is ahead of most of the state in starting the detoxification unit.

RABISHAW COMMENTED that he had not seen the details of the hospital license yet. "We were operating as a sophisticated halfway house. Now we have a hospital license, and I hope we can take whatever medical acts necessary to treat alcoholism," Rabishaw

The new heense means the clinics will have to add a doctor to the staff, but no other new employes will be necessary, Rabishaw said.

"Mainly, the nurses will be able to give tranquilizers to patients to forestall DTs." the clinic's director said. "It helps the patient get through the shaky period under medically supervised care."

The license is good only for 90 days, Rabishaw said, and monthly progress reports will be required. The license will expire after a year. "By then, the state will have the authority to license alcoholism programs," Rabishaw

Rescue makes a hero of maintenance man

Paul Dostal of Hoffman Estates had been working only 21/2 weeks for the Sheffield Towne maintenance crew. On Monday, he became the hero of the Schaumburg townhouse development.

Dostal, 18, saved a youngster from drowning by pulling him from the project's swimming pool.

"One of the girls told me there were kids in the pool," Dostal recalled. "I just ran out there."

He said a companion was holding the youngster who appeared to be about 7 years old, but the boy was slipping from his friend's grasp.

Lydia Kinley, wife of the president of the Sheffield Towne Homeowners' Assn., witnessed the rescue. She said the boy and the companion had apparently climbed over the fence surrounding the swimming pool.

The two were apparently going to walk on the thin ice in the deep end of the L-shaped pool, and the youngster fell in. Mrs. Kinley ran from her house and climbed the fence, but Dostal had already saved the boy.

Neither Dostal nor Mrs. Kinley knew the identities of the two boys.

Funds fate good with 'city' vote'

Officials for park, library and fire districts serving Prospect Heights have said incorporation of the area would help ensure their future financial stability

Spokesmen for the districts said incorporation would bring to an end disannexations that occur when portions of the community are annexed to neighboring suburbs served by other districts or taxing bodies.

Such piecemeal disannexations, officials said, decrease the districts' tax

Although the districts' boundaries would not be changed if Prospect Heights residents decided to incorporate, officials said they would no longer fear loss of "customers" and tax revenues.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS residents will go to the polis Jan. 31 to decide

"Right now the districts are vulnerable to annexation by Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Wheeling. We are not protected by the boundaries of a municipality," said Joyce Armington of the Prospect Heights Li-

The library district has lost residents through annexations to nearby suburbs since the 1950's when the district was formed, she said.

The most recent annexations have been to Arlington Heights, where the village provides library service. Prospect Heights therefore has lost taxpayers and patrons, she said.

"THE FACT THAT we are never sure how many people will be in the district each year paying taxes is a hinderance to us because we can only plan one year at a time," Mrs. Armington said.

The Prospect Heights Library Board has said it will challenge in court any future disconnections from the district "because we cannot afford to keep losing parcels," she said-

"Incorporation would in no way affect our library tax rate. It would just assure us that the people we serve, who are in the library district now, will remain in the district so that we can begin some long-range planning," Mrs. Armington said.

Kent Krautstrunk, director of the Prospect Heights Park District, said incorporation would ensure district stability and provide better police protection against vandalism.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS is currently served by the Cook County Sheriff's Police. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., the group behind incorporation, has said the new city would provide additional police pro-

"There also would be more opportunities for the park district to apply for and receive state and federal funding because it would be part of a municipality, Krautstrunk said.

"There could also be joint cooperation between the park district and city in the purchase and use of equipment and supplies that would save the taxpayers money," he said.

Norman Johnson, president of the Prospect Heights Rural Fire District, agreed with Krautstrunk, saying the district's tax rate and boundaries would remain the same despite incorporation.

THE FIRE DISTRICT also has lost numerous parcels during the last 10 years to Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights, Johnson said. Residents of those areas only pay special taxes used to retire the bonds which paid for the new fire station a 10 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

"We're all right for another seven years until those bonds are fully retired, but after that, I don't think we'll make it," he said.

"It's hard enough to make ends meet now with a volunteer force because we keep losing our tax base,' he said.

Johnson estimates that the fire district has lost about $40,000 in taxes during the past 10 years because of the disannexation of parcels.

While Johnson said incorporation would prevent some disannexations, the future City of Prospect Heights could take over fire protection duties from the district.

Summer Olympic tickets available

It's not too late to plan a trip next summer to beafttiful Montreal, Quebec, for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games. Tickets for many events will be on sale in this country through Dec. 31 and a wide range of accommodations is still available.

Amateur athletes from all over the world will participate in the 21st Olympiad July 17-Aug. 1. Most events will be held in the City of Montreal or nearby suburbs, although a few are scheduled in Toronto.

Over 400,000 tickets for the Olympics were reallocated to the United States Nov. 1, following the end of the first sales period last summer. The tickets are being gomery Ward Auto Club. After the Dec. 31 deadline of sold through Montgomery Ward stores and the Montthis second sales period, no tickets will be available to American citizens.

There are no restrictions on the number of tickets per order for events including archery, canoeing, equestrian sports, football (soccer), field hockey, judo, Modern Pentathlon, rowing, shooting, yachting and many events in the categories of track and field, basketball, boxing and handball.

EVENTS THAT ARE already sold out include opening and closing ceremonies, cycling, fencing, gymnastics, swimming, volleyball, weightlifting, and wrestling.

Schedules for all Olympic events and ticket order forms may be obtained at the catalog order desks of Montgomery Ward stores or by writing War's Auto Club - Olympics, P.O. Box 4000, Taylor, Mich., 48180.

Ward's is employing extraordinary security measures to ensure that tickets get to the persons who order them and do not fall into the hands of scalpers or counterfeiters. Ticket confirmation slips are sent to purchasers in plain envelopes with a simple return address that does not mention the Olympics. Tickets will be mailed in June, 1976 by registered mail.

It would be wise for anyone intending to go to the Olympics to make room reservations for the trip as soon as possible.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Canadian Government Office of Tourism told The Herald that about 45 per cent of all accommodations within a 50-mile radius of Montreal already are booked.

While getting reservations at a major downtown hotel in Montreal could be a problem, he said accommodations still can be arranged at a number of smaller hotels, motels and different types of facilities. The Quebec Lodging Bureau, created by the Quebec government to assist visitors to the 1976 Summer Olympics, has compiled a list of all possible accommodations within 100 miles of the Olympic City.

MONTREAL IS A commercial center already noted for the quality and variety of its tourist facilities, according to a book published by the Lodging Bureau that lists eight various kinds of accommodations that are under its jurisdiction including hotels, motels, tourist homes, private residences, apartment hotels, institutions, youth hostels and camping and trailer parks.

A number of excellent, modern hotels are just a short drive away from the Olympic site via Quebec's superhighways. Several of the large resorts offer a wide range of activities of their own such as golf, tennis, swimming and horseback riding. There are many family-owned smaller hotels in the towns and villages where supper may be served by the cook.

There are six classes identifying the standard of accommodations offered by the hotels, with rates ranging from about $8 to $64 per night, double occupancy.

Motels around Montreal are generally located on the outskirts of the city adjacent to major thoroughfares. Many have a restaurant, an indoor or outdoor swimming pool, conference rooms and even a children's playground. Most motels are equipped with private bath

QUEBEC'S TOURIST homes are described by the Lodging Bureau as being very much like many small European hostelries. They offer fewer services than the larger hotels, but many have a particular kind of Old World charm. Some tourist homes were once spacious private residences, others are completely modern. Generally located in downtown Montreal, tourist homes are often just a few steps from the best restaurants, stores

Tourist homes are divided into two subcategories to distinguish between those who offer breakfast and those who do not. Costs are between $8 and $37 per night.

More than 30,000 rooms and 1,200 furnished houses and apartments are available in and around Quebec by natives who will open their homes to Olympic visitors.

Highly recommending the private homes to travelers, the Lodging Bureau says "Renting a room in a private home is a sure ticket to a warm welcome in Quebec.

During the Olympics, several colleges in and around Montreal will be converted into temporary hotels. Visitors will be lodged in dormitories, multi-occupant bedrooms, single rooms and "roomettes" (beds separated by at least three partitions.)

Sports associations, journalists and groups of 10 persons or more will be given priority by the Lodging Bureau for reservations in institutions. Rates range between $10.50 to $17 per night, double occupancy.

MORE THAN 12,000 youth hostels are available for young Olympic visitors. A sleeping bag is a must, but facilities including toilets, showers plus drinking water are provided. Some have cafeterias which serve meals at moderate prices. A variety of socio-cultural events will be especially planned for guests. Rates per person vary between $1 and $4 per night.

Campers will find camp sites near Montreal and elsewhere in Quebec. The least costly campgrounds offer no services. Others may have a restaurant, grocery store, swimming pool or various other sports facilities. Campgrounds accommodating trailers are equipped with electricity, running water and a sewage system. Sites may be rented for between $3 and $8 per night.

Reservation forms and other information about accommodations for the Olympics are available from the Lodging Bureau, 201 East Cremazie St., Montreal, PQ,

In addition to Montreal's normally long list of cultural activities, a number of special events and programs are planned in connection with the Summer Olympics.

The summer program, set up by the Organizing Committee of the 1976 Olympic Games, will include diverse concerts, ballet, theater and exhibitions. Cinemas will feature special film programs, and art lovers will be able to browse through several unique galleries. Exhibitions of Quebec handicrafts, including pottery, weaving, and woodworking, also are planned.

MOST OF THE events will be presented within Montreal, but some are scheduled in the other two cities of the Olympic triangle, Kingston and Ottawa. They will be staged under the sponsorship of the Artistic and Cultural Program Committee.

Also planned are numerous theater, music. mime, dance and poetry programs. Folk dances, children's shows and pop music concerts also will be presented.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said 'controller error' was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291," Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure, the jet commander descended through the altitude of the TWA flight over Route Traffic Control Center in Aurora is designed to prevent potentially dangerous controller errors.

The new "Conflict Alert" system being installed at the Chicago Air

FAA sppokesmen said the new system was planned for installation long before the recent rash of near misses. "This program has been in the test phase since February in Kansas City, so the program was coming," said

Officials warn village:

'Longer response time if fire station closes'

Fire department response times to large areas of Elk Grove Village would be slowed if officials approved a proposal to close the Landmeier or Greenleaf fire stations.

The village board has discussed closing one of the two fire stations or having each operate half a day so that the village can man a fourth fire station west of Ill. Rte. 53 without hiring any additional firemen. It is expected the fourth station will be built in about a year.

A graphic presentation by the fire department Monday night showed that if the Landmeier Road station were closed, the Higgins Industrial Park and a residential area in the north section of the village, east of Arlington Heights Road, would be more than 512 minutes away from the Greenleaf or headquarters (Biesterfield Road) stations.

THIS INCLUDES the standard 11/2 minutes it takes to have the engines on the road in response to a fire.

If the Greenleaf station were to be closed, industrial areas to the east, including the Rogers Industrial Park, and to the south would be more than 51/2 minutes away from the Landmeier Station. It was pointed out, however, between 25 and 100 per cent of the industries have sprinkler systems, depending on what industrial subdivision they are in.

Fire officials said if both stations are in operation, all areas in the two fire districts can be reached within 41/2 minutes.

Firefighter Greg Riddle, who handled most of the presentation to the village board members, said response time to a fire "should be under 5 minutes" in order to give firemen a chance to control the fire. ,

HE ALSO SAID eight major fires in the past three years - all with $10,000 or more in damage - have occurred outside or at the perimeter of the 41/2minute-response zones. Only two such major fires were within the closer Trustees Edward W. Kenna Jr. and Nanci Vanderweel said they were surprised with statistics that showed the Greenleaf station's calls were at low levels only between 1 and 8 a.m. They said they anticipated the slow period would have been longer because industry would be closed. The station services almost all of the village's industrial areas.

"I don't see the drop I anticipated," Kenna said.

Kenna also questioned the need for "You have to weigh it for cost effectiveness. Can we afford to have that there for every fourth day?"

RIDDLE SAID a total of 172 ambulance runs on which paramedics will be needed will occur this year. Such calls include heart attacks and drug overdoses. That averages to about one paramedic run every other day, or one every four days for each of the two paramedic ambulances.

Kenna said the village will have to find more effective ways to provide paramedic services, perhaps through a regional paramedic service.

"We still have to provide the optimum fire service. People can't turn to anyone else to put out a fire. There are other ambulance services available — private services," he said.

The Elk Grove Village Board will will take about four months and will be asked tonight to approve a study of the village's water-and-sewer rate Village water and sewer rates have stayed at the same level since 1963;

Village approval sought but officials now feel a reorganization may be required to help meet rising James V. Clementi, superintendent of the water-and-sewer division, said his department's costs have doubled. He said there have been significant increases in the cost of chemicals, such as chlorine, and electricity. HE CITED as an example that more than half the $25,809.69 in waterand-sewer department bills to be approved tonight, or some $15,203.48, is for electricity. Finance Director George C. Coney said the electricity rates for water pumps recently increased 18 per cent. He added repairs and maintenance costs also were rising.

"Our annual carryover in the waterand-sewer department budget is dwindling," he said.

The village board will be asked to hire John B. Black Consulting Engineers to study the rate system at a cost not to exceed $16,000. The study include alternatives such as possible lower rates for non-for-profit organizations and separate rates for industrial-commercial and residential

THE CURRENT village water rates are $1 per 1,000 gallons for the first 4,000 gallons used; 85 cents per 1,000 gallons for 4,001 to 8,000 gallons: 65 cents per 1,000 gallons for 8,001 to 12,000 gallons; and 35 cents per 1,000 gallons above 12,000.

The rates were established when the village bought its water system from Centex Homes Corp. in 1963.

In comparison, Wheeling residents pay 50 cents per 1,000 gallons for all village water used. Buffalo Grove residents pay $1.50 per 1,000 gallons for the first 5,000 gallons used and $1.20 per 1,000 gallons up to 30,000 gal-

Mount Prospect officials have given preliminary approval to a sliding rate schedule which would cost 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for most customers and up to $1.30 per 1,000 gallons for larger water users.

The village board meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

Parks ask more talks on shared Dist. 54 facilities

The Elk Grove Park Board will request further meetings with Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials before signing an agreement permitting shared use of school recreational and meeting room facilities.

The school board approved the agreement at its Nov. 6 meeting, but the park board has refused to consider signing until the agreement becomes more specific.

"The thing I don't like about this agreement is everything has been done at long range," Park Pres. Edward R. Hauser said. He suggested that the two boards meet.

THE AGREEMENT was designed to cover all future school sites within the park district boundaries, but now only two sites at Link and Stevenson Schools are included.

The park site at Link School is owned by the park district, and the The board members said they were district also will own the park site at Stevenson School. There has been a delay in the park district's takeover of the Stevenson park because the district considers the swampy and improperly graded land unsuitable.

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horrace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

'You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously - like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional warplanes.

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Rogers said

Rogers has been building and flying the models since he was a child. He enjoys it as a hobby but is not interested in the growing competitive aspect of "the sport."

"More people are getting involved in it," said Horrace Cain, Buffalo Grove, who also is a pilot for United.

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's member-

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile model kits.

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing." he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School. "IT'S A whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane stunt pilots.

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA sookesman Neal Callahan said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291," Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure. the jet commander descended through

Hoffman parks propose study to dissolve district

A study has been proposed by the Hoffman Estates Park District to determine if the park district should be dissolved and made part of the vil-

The study would be a joint effort between the park district and village to consider the feasibility of the move.

The proposal has come from the park district in the wake of a vote by commissioners last week to abandon a planned park improvement referendum and to propose the study.

Both matters were presented by Comr. Thomas Barber and were approved by split votes of the board. Only Comr. George Rush, board president, voted against dropping the referendum plan.

HOWEVER, Rush joined with Barber and Comr. Anthony Stompanato to remest the dissolution study.

Board members Shirley Gibbons and Tomas McGuire voted against the

Barber said he proposed the study to learn if recreation services can be provided more economically through village administration rather than the park district, an independent taxing

"It may or may not be in the best interest of the people, but I think it would be worth our while to find out," Barber said. "I think that there might be something there in terms of savings and I think there might be some benefit from the standpoint of dealing with developers (to obtain land and financial donations for recreation).

"I don't think the Hoffman Estates Park District has a chance in competing with the Schaumburg Park District because they have so much more money," Barber added.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter said Monday she has received Barber's letter proposing the study and will forward the matter to the village board. She said she believes the proposal is a worthwhile venture.

"I think the study group is an excellent idea," Mrs. Hayter said. "It will be a good relationship thing. The best way to get rid of fear is to get

Park and village officials said they do not know what legalities would be involved in a possible park district dissolution.

The district operates with an annual budget of nearly $500,000 and owns 25 park sites in the village. The district's tax rate is 33 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, or about $38 in park taxes on a home assessed at $10,000. Discussion surrounding a park referendum had been continuing for several months, but the board action last week has officially "postponed indefinitely" the referendum question, Rush said Monday.

RUSH SAID he still believes the referendum is "worth pursuing," but Barber said the proposal is not needed now.

"We decided rather than ask for more money, we should tighten our helts." Barber said. He added some commissioner had questioned if a referendum could be passed in the current economic climate.

"I would be most interested in protecting monies collected for recreation to be spent on recreation," Barber said. "We should try to get as much mileage out of taxes as we

YMCA drive nets $24,000

The Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates business community is "responding beautifully" to Twinbrook YMCA's current fund drive, says Bob Williams, executive director of the Y.

To date, $24,000, or 20 per cent of this year's goal, has been collected since the drive began Nov. 19, Williams said.

Williams singled out three campaigners who have already exceeded their quotas of $2,000: Tony Bonavolunta, of Roselle, has brought in collections' totaling $3,800, and Peggy Alston and Jim Hooker, both of Hoffman Estates, report receipts of $2,290 and $2.040 respectively.

The business patron section of the drive ends Dec. 17, though families in the Y service area later will be asked to pledge $120 per year payable over a three-year period.

The Y is raising money to construct a $360,000 family center on Wise Road property. The project is planned as the first phase of a proposed $2.5 million full facility YMCA.

Twinbrook YMCA, a nearly nine-year-old organization, has not yet constructed a building.

SCHAUMBURG'S NEW 1976 vehicle stickers recognize the proposed Spring Valley Nature Center, lauding the area as the village's "gift to tomorrow."

COMMUNITY LEADERS of both Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are urging all to give the ultimate gift of love during the boliday seasons.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controller failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291." Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAHAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure, the jet commander descended through

From 10 to 4 aldermen

'Stronger city manager means smaller council'

by JERRY THOMAS

The Rolling Meadows City Council could dwindle from its present to aldermen to only four elected-at-large representatives if the city adopts a stronger city manager form of government.

City finance committee members learned Monday that if a referendum for a stronger city managerial government is approved without additional questions dealing with the make-up of the council, its number is automatically set at four members by state

Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, chairman of the finance committee which first proposed the adoption of the city manager form of government, said he will fight to keep the council at 10 al-

HE SAID HIS is a personal opinion based on his feelings that the city is best represented by to aldermen elected from within their wards.

Jacobson and committee members Raymond Neukranz, 1st, and Kenneth Retzke, 5th, agreed if a city manager question were to go to the voters, the referendum would include a question on the makeup of the council.

They added they would all work to keep the present council makeup with its present 10 members elected by

The information that a city manager vote with no aldermanic question on the ballot would reduce their number to four was the second surprise aldermen received this month.

When city aldermen recently voted to call the referendum question Mayor Roland J. Meyer, in a surprise move. asked that the referendum also include a proposal to reduce the number of aldermen from 10 to 5.

LEGAL RESEARCH on the referendum and the mayor's proposal to decrease the council was conducted by City Atty. Donald Rose who told committee members Monday their numbers could dwindle further.

The attorney's report said if nothing is done at the time of a referendum to set the size of the council, state statutes automatically calls for four aldermen elected at large.

If the council wishes to retain the practice of electing two aldermen from each of the city's five wards, that question must be included on the referendum ballot concerning the city manager form of government,

The council may also eall for election of only five aldermen, one from each ward.

Jacobson said while he had strong opinions about the council's make-up, he wanted others on the council to review attorney Rose's report on the referendum question.

"I will, however, continue to recommend that we ask voters to decide if they want a strong city manager form of government, and allow the full city council to decide the aldermanic question," he said.

William and Sheila Abraham, 4406 Hawthorn La, have tried for several months to obtain city zoning and licensing to operate a teen amusement

The business venture has created controversy between the council and Meyer and has been the subject of severe criticism from several church groups and Police Chief Lewis Case.

Council action on the proposal has been repeatedly delayed as aldermon and the mayor debated the legality and morality of the issue

The city council circumvented his veto by successfully passing an amendment to the zoning ordinance

"We attempt to bring the joy and happiness of the Christmas season to members of the community who are unable to leave their homes or can travel on a very limited basis.

"We have arranged to have Santa Claus and Jolly, his elf, personally visit shut-ins to share good spirits and wishes for a speedy recovery and present them with a small gift," said Robert Adamski, Jaycees vicepresident.

"However, we need help from the community to obtain names, addresses and ages of all shut-ins in our community," said Adamski.

People with such information are asked to contact the Jaycees by calling 392-2434 or 394-8009.

Santa will visit with shut-ins Dec. 20 The Jaycees and Santa Claus also plan to visit patients at Northwest Community Hospital Christmas Eve.

They build and fly them

Small-scale planes intrigue pilots

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horrace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

"You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines. And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously - like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Rogers said.

Rogers has been building and flying the models since he was a child. He enjoys it as a hobby but is not interested in the growing competitive aspect of "the sport."

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's membership growth rate has been about the same," Cain said.

MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air," he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

"IT'S A whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane stunt pilots.

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

EPA official, parks to meet on pool issue

A representative from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will meet with the Palatine Park District today at 7:30 p.m at the Palatine Hills Golf Course, 512 W. Northwest

The representative will discuss possible environmental concerns related to the park district's planned outdoor swimming pool under construction at Home Avenue and Oak Street. Residents in the area have been fighting construction of the pool because they say it will create excessive noise, traffic hazards and flooding problems.

The EPA has said noise from the pool, which is located 23 feet from the nearest home, will exceed EPA standards and create severe problems for the area. Homeowners from the area will also appear at the meeting to again ask the park board to relocate the pool. The park board has said it will not move the pool but has offered to purchase the house of the family closest to the pool if they feel they cannot cope with the expected noise.

Small-scale planes intrigue pilots

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horrace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

"You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously - like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Rogers said.

Rogers has been building and flying the models since he was a child. He enjoys it as a hobby but is not interested in the growing competitive aspect of "the sport."

'More people are getting involved in it," said Horrace Cain, Buffalo Grove, who also is a pilot for United.

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's membership growth rate has been about the same," Cain said.

MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air," he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect. Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile mod-

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

"IT'S A whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

Federal Aviation Administration said Monday special aircraft warning equipment will be in operation in the Chicago area as early as next week to prevent repeats of two recent near mid-air collisions.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said "controller error" was responsible for the most recent near miss by two jetliners over Lake Michigan approaching O'Hare Airport Friday. The two planes are estimated to have passed within 300 feet of each other.

"The controlly failed to recognize that the TWA flight was overtaking United flight 291," Callahan said, noting both planes were assigned the same altitude.

CALLAMAN SAID investigations into two other incidents involving planes intruding on each other's air space Friday showed possible pilot error in one case and an air traffic control system error in the other.

In the first case, a twin-jet commander and a TWA jet were traveling to Chicago along the same route. During a minor communications failure. the jet commander descended through

Parking meters for downtown area considered

Installation of parking meters in Mount Prospect's downtown area is being considered as a way of raising additional village revenue

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. asked the village manager to put together information on a parking meter proposal for consideration at the January meeting of the finance committee.

Currently the only parking meters in the village are in the commuter parking lots along the railroad tracks. Other areas have a two-hour parking

VILLAGE MGR. ROBERT J. Eppley said parking meters have not been considered in the four years he has been in Mount Prospect. "For some reason it is just a 'no-no', and it ought to be a 'yes-yes'," he said.

Eppley said parking meters raise revenue both through meter collections and parking ticket fines. He said meters can be installed both on the street and in village-owned parking

Another advantage, Eppley said, is the meters can be paid for from monev made in collections and ticket fines "Otherwise it would be kind of traumatic to lay out a whole bunch of money," he said, noting each meter costs about $70 to $90

Installation of parking meters would also produce a turnover in parking in the downtown area, Eppley said. "The thing that usually leads to a town outting in parking meters is monopolization of the best parking spaces by merchants," he said.

BEFORE ANY METERS are installed. Eppley said the town will have to conduct a survey to determine the price and time limitations. He said the type of meters would be determined by the kind of shopping done

Although the move may not be popular with merchants at first, Eppley said his experience shows both shoppers and merchants eventually get used to the meters.

Rhea said the study of the parking meters will be part of his systematic look at all possible revenue sources for the village. He said he also plans to investigate raising village fines for such violations as parking.

Funds fate good with 'city' vote'

Officials for park, library and fire districts serving Prospect Heights have said incorporation of the area would help ensure their future financial stability.

Spokesmen for the districts said incorporation would bring to an end disannexations that occur when portions of the community are annexed to neighboring suburbs served by other districts or taxing bodies.

Such piecemeal disannexations, officials said, decrease the districts' tax

Although the districts' boundaries would not be changed if Prospect Heights residents decided to incorporate, officials said they would no longer fear loss of "customers" and tax revenues.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS residents will go to the polls Jan. 31 to decide

Parks stalled; need annex approval

Plans to develop new park facilities in unincorporated Wheeling Township will be stymied unless a voluntary annexation agreement can be reached with owners of the Lake Run apartment complex on Old Willow Road.

The Wheeling and River Trails park districts hope to reach a settlement with owners of the 20-acres in order to proceed with annexation and park development plans. So far, neither side is close to an agreement.

Wheeling officials met with representatives of the owners Saturday and River Trails officials hope to arrange a meeting soon.

The Wheeling Park District must reach an agreement in order to open a corridor for annexation of the Quincy Park quadrominium apartments. also located on Old Willow Road. State law prohibits annexation of single parcels of 20 acres or more by referendum without prior consent of the owners. UNLESS AN agreement is worked out, only the Gladstone Glen apartment complex at Wolf and Old Willow roads'could be annexed to the Wheeling district, and officiald don't believe the additional tax revenues would support new park construction.

A tentative December annexation referendum was postponed pending the outcome of talks. David Phillips, Wheeling Park District director, said representatives of the owners reacted favorably Saturday to annexation proposals.

"I think they looked favorably on our proposals," Phillips said "We hope to hear back from them in a couple of weeks." Phillips would not disclose the names of the owner and niether would the Lake Run apartment management.

Marvin Weiss, River Trails Park District director, said park officials want a meeting with owners to discuss an annexation agreement of their

THE DISTRICT HAS expressed interest in annexation since both Gladstone Glen and Quincy Park rejected an Oct. 25 annexation referendum. Weiss said a park for the Willow River area, located at Old Willow and River roads, cannot be built until the tax base is broadened. The Willow River area was the only one which voted to join the River Trails Park District.

"We'd like to talk to them to get their feelings about it," said Weiss. Before we could build a new park for the area, we'd need to annex some more property

Weiss said the park board plans to meet Thursday to discuss its options

Should the 20 acres come into the River Trails Park District, Gladstone Gien and Quincy Park would be surrounded by the district, leaving both areas open to forcible annexation.

MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air," he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile mod-

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

'IT'S A whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane stunt pilots.

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

Cop slightly injured in three-car crash

A Schaumburg patrolman was slightly injured Monday night in a three-car, chain reaction accident on snow-slick Golf Road west of Highland Boulevard, police said.

Patrolman Roy Desmond was released after emergency treatment at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. No other injuries were

Bicentennial unit asks state funds

The Prospect Heights Bicentennial Commission has applied for three state grants totaling $7,400 to finance entertainment, art and recreation projects next year.

Lynn Klotz, commission chairman. said the grants require 50 per cent matching funds from the community. Action on the applications will be taken by the end of the year. The group is seeking donations:

The grant applications were the first action of the newly formed commission, established by a resolution which the Prospect Heights Park Board approved two weeks ago. The park board was designated as the sponsoring governmental agency for the commission in lieu of a village board or a city council, Mrs. Klotz

THE COMMISSION has applied for a $1,200 performing arts grant and a $1,200 art grant and a $5,000 recreation equipment grant.

The park board and the commission have applied jointly for the recreation grant which calls for the purchase of equipment for the new recreation center under construction at Elm Street at Camp McDonald Road. The equipment would be purchased as a Bicentennial gift to the community, she

The art grant, called Sundance '76: would be used to commission a local artist to paint a Bicentennial painting or do a series of lithographs for a traveling Bicentennial exhibit for the Prospect Heights community, Mrs. Klotz said.

The performing arts grant would be used to pay for entertainment that would be provided during a Bicentennial weekend celebration, June 4 to 6, 1976, she said.

The preliminary plans for the weekend celebration call for a torchlight parade featuring area bands and floats constructed by civic organizations. The parade will begin at Lions Park and end at Hersey High School where a Marine Corps unit from the Glenview Naval Air Base will present uniforms and flags of the past, Mrs. Klotz said.

'Funds fate good with 'city' vote'

"THE FACT THAT we are never sure how many people will be in the district each year paying taxes is a hinderance to us because we can only plan one year at a time," Mrs. Armington said.

The Prospect Heights Library Board has said it will challenge in court any future disconnections from the district "because we cannot afford to keep losing parcels," she said

'Incorporation would in no way atfect our library tax rate. It would just assure us that the people we serve, who are in the library district now, will remain in the district so that we can begin some long-range planning," Mrs. Armington said.

Kent Krautstrunk, director of the Prospect Heights Park District, said incorporation would ensure district stability and provide better police protection against vandalism.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS is currently served by the Cook County Sheriff's Police. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., the group behind incorporation, has said the new city would provide additional police pro-

"There also would be more opportunities for the park district to apply for and receive state and federal funding because it would be part of a municipality, Krautstrunk said.

"There could also be joint cooperation between the park district and city in the purchase and use of equipment and supplies that would save the taxpayers money," he said. Norman Johnson, president of the Prospect Heights Rural Fire District, agreed with Krautstrunk, saying the district's tax rate and boundaries would remain the same despite incorporation.

THE FIRE DISTRICT also has lost numerous parcels during the last 10 years to Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights, Johnson said. Residents of those areas only pay special taxes used to retire the bonds which paid for the new fire station a 10 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

hand-crafted

"We're all right for another seven years until those bonds are fully retired, but after that, I don't think we'll make it," he said. ."It's hard enough to make ends meet now with a volunteer force because we keep losing our tax base," Johnson estimates that the fire district has lost about $40,000 in taxes during the past 10 years because of the disannexation of parcels.

While Johnson said incorporation would prevent some disannexations, the future City of Prospect Heights could take over fire protection duties from the district.
